Italian Paper Predicts Early Fall of Madrid And End of War

Diplomatic Sources Say Duce Is Author of Article

NEW DRIVE IS SEEN

Franco Reported Preparing for Attack Upon Capital

(By the Associated Press)

A promise that Madrid would fall shortly and the European crisis thereby be ended was published editorially in Rome in Premier Mussolini's newspaper il popolo d'italia today, and diplomatic sources attributed authorship to il duce himself.

The article said that the Spanish capital would fall as soon as insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco could finish cleaning out the Basque provinces along the northern frontier.

Franco's troops have taken Bilbao and now are driving against Santander, last major city on the northern Spanish coast.

When this drive is complete, the editorial said, Franco will throw the entire weight of his forces against Madrid.

A new plan to get a measure of Italian and German cooperation in the international naval patrol of Spain was reported being prepared today in Paris.

Observers on Warships

Informed sources said the program provided for placing Italian observers on French ships and German representatives on British vessels, to maintain supervision of any movement of arms or foreign fighters to Spain.

That scheme was an amplification of the Franco-British proposal that their ships fill the gaps in the neutrality cordon created by withdrawal of Italian and German ships.

Authoritative Rome sources declared, however, Italy would oppose maintenance of the patrol by British and France alone. In some Italian quarters it was said there was no need of closing the holes, because Italian and German ships were continuing an independent watch. While participating in the neutrality patrol they had been stationed along the eastern Spanish coast, off government-held territory.

German Viewpoint

German newspapers, although they expressed approval of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's attitude toward the Reich as expressed in his speech yesterday, blamed Britain and France for the breakdown of cooperation among the four great western European powers.

On the actual fighting front, insurgents were reported massing troops in the Jarama region southeast of Madrid, menacing the important highway from Madrid to Valencia on the Mediterranean.

Reports from Gibraltar said a new insurgent drive against Almeria, in the south, also was being organized. More than 10,000 Moors, legionnaires and other troops, advices said, have been ferried from Ceuta, Morocco, to Algeciras, Spain, and distributed to insurgent garrisons at Malaga and Cadiz.

Lasser Is Reelected Alliance President

Milwaukee—(AP)—The Workers' Alliance of America, concluding its third annual national convention here last night, adopted a resolution demanding a 30 per cent general increase in WPA wages, with a monthly minimum of $40 and prevailing union wages where such scales exist.

Delegates unanimously reelected David Lasser, Washington, D. C., alliance president, and named Herbert Benjamin, Washington, national secretary-treasurer.

The convention went on record favoring President Roosevelt's plan to name new supreme court justices, and authorized its officers to confer with WPA officials in an effort to have the alliance named sole bargaining agency for all WPA workers.

Tall Stories Without a Slip

Having mounted the 32 stairs of Cincinnati's 495 foot Union Central Building in eight minutes, one Hal Miller claims world's championship as a fast climber. Fast? Ha! Only yesterday a New York paper front-paged a woman who in less than a year climbed from a walk-up cold-water tenement downtown to a $5000-a-year duplex apartment on Park Avenue lugging $40,000 's worth of jewelry, off and on, but mostly on. That's climbing. Got her start through a want-ad, but not in The Post-Crescent where this ad made a sale:

ALFALFA HAY—3 acres for sale from field. Tel. 468. Inquire at 1531 S. Oneida.

Sold hay after ad appeared two times. Received 4 calls.

Robert Irwin, Suspect in Gedeon Murders, Is Sought By Officials at Cleveland

REPORTED IN OHIO

A man believed to be Robert Irwin (above), suspect in the triple Gedeon murder in New York, was being sought today in Cleveland. Hotel employes identified a bar boy as Irwin.

Cleveland —(AP)— An artist who police said "definitely" was Robert Irwin fled his shabby, dim-lighted room and left only a slender trail today for authorities seeking him for New York city's famous Gedeon murders.

A kitchen girl, a clerk and half-dozen other employes at a leading downtown hotel identified a bar boy there as the sculptor-divinity student charged with slaying last March 28 pretty Veronica Gedeon, her mother and a man who roomed at their east side flat.

"The man definitely is Irwin," declared Detective Lieutenant Stephen Tozzer as a widespread hunt was started for the fugitive a few hours after he vanished from this Lake Erie city.

The kitchen girl, attractive, chubby, dark-haired Henrietta Koscianski, 19, started police on an intensive search of the former insane asylum inmate, accused of murder in triplicate.

Saw Magazine Picture

She recognized, as she thumbed through a detective story magazine Wednesday night, a resemblance between the 29-year-old man named as the killer of art's good-time girl, and the bar boy who had worked at the hotel for a month and a half.

Miss Koscianski, who said "I didn't tell police because it occurred to me only as a coincidence," asked him playfully last night:

"Say, Bob, what is your real name, anyhow?"

"Robert Murray, why?" she said was the reply.

"Then I said: 'Did you ever hear of Robert Irwin,' and he turned his back to me and said 'No'—sounding kind of indifferent. I didn't see the expression on his face. He turned and walked out of the hotel kitchen and that was the last I ever saw of him."

"I hadn't thought of him as a murderer. It was only after he was gone that I realized he must have been Irwin"

Summon Police

Police were called and the search started early today for the man sought throughout the nation since early in April—the man named by assistant Chief Inspector John A. Lyons of New York police as the Easter Sunday slayer of Miss Gedeon, her mother, Mary, 54, and a male roomer in their Beekman Hill apartment.

Detective squads, piqued at the time elapsed between his disappearance and when it was reported several hours later, hurried to his room in a cheap hotel.

There they found no trace of the man, whom they were told had registered April 8 under the name of Jack Murdock, and had informed the hotel on June 11 that the name Murdock was a mistake, and that his name really was James Murray.

Bernice Felton Is Freed in Slaying Case in Arkansas

Faces Federal Prosecution In Case Involving Stolen Auto

Lonoke, Ark.—(AP)—Slim Bernice Felton, who found her acquittal on a murder charge "too wonderful to believe," faced federal prosecution today after a night spent outside the city on the advice of the mayor who said "a lot of people here didn't like the verdict."

The 18-year-old Rockford, Ill., girl and her father cut short celebration of her acquittal in the hitch-hike killing of Victor Gates for which her erstwhile lover, Lester Brockelhurst, was sentenced to die in the electric chair. They spent the night in a tourist camp near the city after Mayor George Bailey told them the townspeople "didn't like to see them parading up and down our streets after their victory."

Today she was scheduled to appear in Little Rock to answer federal charge of transporting Gates' stolen automobile from Arkansas to New York.

Youth in Deathhouse

A jury of farmers acquitted the girl of first degree murder and accessory charges with 80 minutes of deliberation last night after a one-day trial.

The girl won her freedom only a few minutes after the 23-year-old Brockelhurst, semi-conscious and moaning, had been taken to the deathhouse at Tucker prison farm to await electrocution Aug. 27.

The Galesburg, Ill., hitch-hiker, who testified he believed himself the father of the Felton girl's unborn baby, turned against her at her trial. Appearing as a state witness, he declared he killed three men and committed numerous robberies during a two-months' tour of 18 states in order that he might furnish her with money and clothes.

She denied his assertions, telling the jury that fear for her own life caused her to aid him, particularly in disposal of Gates' body after the roadside killing of the Little Rock man near Lonoke.

Prosecutor George Hartje demanded the death penalty for Bernice—a sentence never yet given a woman in Arkansas.

Protect Democracy, Loomis Asks Veterans

Wausau—(AP)—Orland S. Loomis, state attorney general, told delegates to the Wisconsin Veterans of Foreign Wars encampment here today that "it is the duty of ex-service men to protect and defend the democracy of the United States."

Loomis said that he noticed in other countries war veterans were taking an active part in the overthrow of existing governments but that in this country the veterans stood back to back in the defense of their government.

Congressman Gerald J. Boileau, Wausau, spoke briefly. The V. F. W. convention, which ends tomorrow, today reached its peak attendance with a throng of nearly 5,000 gathered to witness the parade and other outdoor activities of the afternoon.

Delegates voted to hold their 1938 convention at Superior, Wis.

Skeleton Tent City Is Erected in Washington

Washington—(AP)—A skeleton tent city became a bustling outdoor camp today after the vanguard of 27,000 Boy Scouts arrived for a 10-day national jamboree.

Camp chiefs prepared a noon luncheon for 5,000 troopers from 10 states. Officials said about 7,000 would arrive tomorrow.

Sightseeing trips will occupy most of each day, but each regional group of scouts will devote several hours to rehearsing nightly pageants portraying historical events.

Tornado, Rains After Heat Wave

Damage Confined to Relatively Small Area in Middle West

Chicago—(AP)—Broken power and communication lines, damaged buildings and crops, and inundated lowlands provided evidence today of a tornado and heavy rains which followed the middle west heat wave.

Although cooling winds swept a wide expanse of territory from the gulf to the Great Lakes, damage was confined to a relatively small area in Illinois, Wisconisn and Indiana.

Three persons succumbed in Illinois last night to the effects of the heat, bringing to 24 the number of deaths attributed to high temperatures.

A twister ripped over an area about 12 miles long and one and one half miles wide in the vicinities of Marinton, Papineau and Beaverville, Ill., yesterday. Buildings, trees and crops were flattened and power and telephone lines laid low.

Similar damage was done by a severe windstorm and heavy rains in southern Wisconsin and northwestern Indiana. Monroe bore the brunt of the storm in Wisconsin. The towns of Oxford and Boswell in Benton county, Ind., were plunged into darkness when the storm disrupted power lines.

Oconto County Highway Workers Out on Strike

Oconto—(AP)—Oconto county highway department workers were still on strike today in their demand for higher wages. Their original demand for 60 cents an hour had been scaled down to 55 cents, but the county offered 45 cents, 10 cents more than the present wage. Negotiations are to be resumed Monday, officials said.

Week's Weather

Chicago—(AP)—Weather outlook for the period June 28 to July 3:

For the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys, and the northern and central great plains—Generally fair beginning of week, followed by showers by middle and probably within latter half; moderate temperatures beginning of week, followed by warmer.

Talk of Third Term Heard at U. S. Capital

Congress Opinion Split on Possibility of Roosevelt Running Again

PRESIDENT SILENT

Senator Wagner Quotes Executive as Saying He Won't Seek Post

Washington—(AP)—The declaration of Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania for the reelection of President Roosevelt in 1930 has created a flurry of third-term speculation in the capital.

Members of congress expressed divergent opinions. Mr. Roosevelt has made no public comment since Earle's statement. At the Democratic Victory dinner last March he said:

"My great ambition of Jan. 20, 1941, is to turn over this desk and chair in the White House to my successor, whoever he may be, with the assurance that I am at the same time turning over to him as president a nation intact, a nation at peace, a nation prosperous. . . ."

Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) said yesterday, the New York Evening Journal reported, that Mr. Roosevelt told him he would not seek another term. The conversation, the paper said, took place after Earle spoke.

Against Precedent

Legislators in cloakroom conversations listed several arguments which opposing sides might raise. These contentions, they said, could be advanced against a third term:

1. The precedent against a third term has existed since George Washington's time. Only one president—Ulysses S. Grant—sought a third elective term, and his party emphatically refused him the nomination. Theodore Roosevelt ran unsuccessfully for a third term in 1912, but his first was not effective, since he stepped from the vice presidency to the White House after President McKinley was killed.

2. Both houses of congress in the past have condemned third terms. When Grant was being boomed for a third term in 1876, the house voted 234 to 18 for a resolution calling the two-term tradition "a part of our republican system of government." A similar resolution by Senator LaFollette (P-Wis.), passed the senate, 56 to 26, in 1928 when a third term for President Coolidge was being widely discussed.

Third-Term Arguments

Congresmen said these arguments could be raised for a third-term:

1. Mr. Roosevelt likes to break precedents. He began by flying to Chicago in 1932 to accept his first nomination on the convention floor.

2. If the Democratic party should fail to develop an outstanding candidate, the rank-and-file might try to draft the president to run again.

3. A war in Europe or another economic crisis might make a change in national leadership inadvisable. Abraham Lincoln's argument against swapping horses in the middle of the stream is being cited by some New Dealers who believe an international emergency may develop before 1940.

Fur Coats are Stolen In LaCrosse Burglary

LaCrosse —(AP)— Fur coats said to be worth $1,500, and $40 in cash were stolen last night from the Lutz fur store, 203 Main street. A burglar, apparently alone, cut a hole in the roof over the storeroom at the rear of the business establishment, and slid down on a piece of clothesline.

Police are seeking a man giving his name as L. Howard, who rented a room on the third floor of the building adjoining the fur store, on June 22. He said he had occupied the room "about six years ago" and it was not so noisy as the others. In 1928 the store was burglarized in an identical manner.

Bit of Pottery to be Put Into Cornerstone

Fond du Lac—(AP)—Last summer when he visited ruins of the recently excavated "Chapel of the Loaves and Fishers" in Palestine, claimed to be the site where Jesus fed the multitude, the Rev. G. W. Genszler of Racine, Wis., brought back a fragment of pottery.

Tomorrow, this fragment, said by Rev. Genszler to be a piece of an altar vessel, will be incased in the cornerstone of the new Our Savior's Lutheran church being dedicated here.

Term Already Is Concluded, House Thinks

Senate Adjournment Until Tuesday Indicates End Of Many Bills

ASSEMBLY ANGERED

Administration Leaders Willing to Shelve Numerous Measures

Madison —(AP)— The senate completed legislative action late yesterday on an assembly bill granting the conservation commission power to regulate all fishing and hunting in interstate boundary and outlying waters.

The measure, which now goes to Governor LaFollette for his signature, disposes of a long fight over regulation of commercial fishing in Green bay and Lakes Michigan and Superior. Such fishing heretofore has been regulated by statute.

The bill is the last step in giving the commission complete control over all hunting and fishing in the state. The present statute set up such control over inland waters.

Madison—(AP)—Assemblymen who voted to adjourn the state legislature sine die next Friday and a small group of embittered members who tried to prevent that action, had discovered today they are practically through now.

The senate gave a hint as to the amount of work it expects to do in the final week by adjourning yesterday until 8 o'clock Tuesday night, indicating that most of the 600 bills still pending in the two houses will go into the scrap pile.

Its action had the encouragement of Governor LaFollette's advisors.

Among the measures that may die is the Vaughan bill, re-establishing the state fair trade practice commission which administers industrial codes that have been in effect since the time of NRA.

The commission and all its codes will pass out of existence next month unless the legislature continues the present law or enacts a new one. The issue may be left to the forthcoming special session.

Milk Price Act

Also about to expire is the milk price regulation act. A senate bill to renew this law is now caught in the assembly jam, but is due for consideration in the house Tuesday as a special order of business.

Dozens of other bills in which the authors have a strong personal interest likewise are entrapped, and no words have been spared by the adjournment opponents as to how they feel about it.

The burden of the anti-adjournment fight, which exceeded anything this assembly has seen for

Plan to Enroll 53,995 In CCC Camps in July

Washington —(AP)— The civilian conservation corps announced today 53,995 youths and war veterans would be enrolled in July as replacements for the remainder of the year.

The program, approved by acting Director James J. McEntee, is contingent on President Roosevelt's approval of the CCC extension bill enacted by congress, and the appropriation of funds for operating costs in the 1938 fiscal year.

It provides for the maintenance of the CCC at an enrolled strength of 300,000 young men and war veterans, 10,000 Indians and 5,000 territorials.

Approximately 5,000 war veterans, and 49,000 unmarried young men between the ages of 17 and 23 years of age will be enrolled as replacements. The state replacement quotas will include: Michigan, 1,940 juniors and 455 veterans; Minnesota, 2,000 and 203; Wisconsin 1,722 and 179.

Suspect Faces Trial In Alleged Swindle

Chicago—(AP)—United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker held Harry C. Wilhelm, 38, to the federal grand jury under $7,500 bond today on a charge of transporting bonds obtained by fraud to Chicago from Wisconsin.

Wilhelm, also known as Ralph Becker, was seized June 20 in Cassopolis, Mich.

The complaint alleged he swindled John S. Runyan, Lone Rock, Wis., of more than $5,000 worth of bonds. Investigators would not name a second man they said they were seeking.

Tavernkeeper Has Trouble Buying His Licenses With 15,500 Pennies

Prairie Du Chien, Wis—(AP)—Ted Clanton, who spent a year accumulating 15,500 pennies with which to pay his liquor and cigarette licenses for his tavern probably won't do it again.

The bushel basketful of pennies had been dumped on City Treasurer Irvin La Bonne's desk Thursday. As the mercury continued to rise during the afternoon, La Bonne's ambition took a corresponding drop, and as the day waned he had not been able to apply himself to the task of counting the pennies.

With the temperature in the sweltering 80's, LaBonne spent a fitful night. To put himself to sleep, he tried to count pennies jumping into the cash register.

Came the dawn, and the city attorney was called into the case. Sympathetic toward his companion city official, he went to his office and hauled down a federal statute book.

"Minor coins shall be accepted as legal tender in any transaction up to 25 cents," he read.

Clanton was notified that he should collect his basketfull of metal and return it to his tavern. He was not long in making his way to the treasurer's office, where, after a little conference and undisclosed inducements, LaBonne decided that after all he could count and wrap the pennies. So all yesterday morning LaBonne and occasional assistants helped him "make money"—wrapping loose pennies in rolls of 25 so that they might become legal tender.

And then Clanton got his licenses.

C. I. O. Charges Troops Are "Strike-Breakers" In Ohio; Launches Suit

Seeks to Enjoin Governor From Using Guardsmen

PLANTS REOPENED

Union Leaders Protest In Telegram to Roosevelt

Columbus, Ohio, —(AP)—The C.I.O. filed in federal court today a suit to enjoin Governor Martin L. Davey from using national guard troops in the Mahoning valley to protect men returning to work in the strike-embroiled steel mills. Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood set a hearing for next Thursday on the motion.

A request that the governor, Adjutant General Emil F. Marx, Sheriff Ralph E. Elser of Mahoning county (Youngstown) and Mayor Roy F. Hardman of Youngstown show cause "for violating the federal constitution by depriving the citizens of free speech and assembly," was filed with the suit.

The suit specifically asked that General Marx and civil authorities be prohibited from enforcing the proclamation of Governor Davey, who ordered the troops Thursday night to afford protection to workers desiring to return to their jobs.

Carrington T. Marshall, former Ohio chief justice, filed the suit in behalf of the C.I.O.

Youngstown, Ohio —(AP)— They went back to work today in the rich Mahoning valley of steel.

Militia prevailed, protecting both "the right to work and the right to strike. Union leaders, in telegrams to President Roosevelt, called the soldiers "strike-breakers."

C.I.O. chiefs, finding themselves suddenly on the defensive, called upon the strikers to re-energize their lines.

"The strike goes on unbroken!" its leaders said. Steel wrote its answer with belching smoke from long-smokeless stacks.

Definitely there was a new crisis at hand in the month-long turmoil that has made 100,000 idle and stretched into seven states. Troops, costing the state of Ohio more than $20,000 a day, cannot remain in the valley forever. What may happen when they are withdrawn remains a matter of deep concern.

Troops Remain

The governor has not indicated how long the troops are to stay. They are not expected to withdraw at least until the middle of next week. By that time the "back-to-work" movement at the mills in Youngstown, Warren, Canton, Niles and Cleveland will probably have demonstrated what strength it may possess.

The reopened mills of Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., changed another shift of mill workers at 7 a. m. today without any reports of interference by strike pickets of John L. Lewis' C.I.O. forces.

With national guardsmen, uniformed police and deputy sheriffs on patrol duty at all mill entrances, hundreds of workers swarmed through gates for the Saturday day shift.

Observers touring the plant gates along both sides of the Mahoning river, reported no visible signs of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee trying to maintain picket lines against the back-to-work movement let loose by Governor Davey's order to use that state troops for reopening of the steel mills.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube said "about one-third" of their 15,000 men had reported back for work. Republic said about 2,500 men—roughly one-third — were back there.

Claims Denied

C.I.O. organizer, John Owens, discounted these claims. He said the steel companies were just "shifting men around." He said he doubted if there were more than 1,000 men at work at the plants of the two companies yesterday, and he didn't think the number increased any when the 7 o'clock p. m. shift went on. The companies propose to work on 12-hour shifts for a few days until the regular eight-hour shifts can be put in operation.

Party Harmony Chief Purpose Of Conferences

Little Serious Discussion Thus Far at Jefferson Island Club

Annapolis, Md. —(AP)— A second batch of 100 Democratic congressmen went to tiny Jefferson island in Chesapeake bay today for "an old-fashioned political picnic" with President Roosevelt.

That description by sun-burned guests returning from the first day's outing yesterday removed much of the political significance of the three-day affair.

The guests reported a smattering of serious political discussion interwoven with horse-play and relaxation. There was no denial, however, that the underlying purpose was to promote harmony in party ranks.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, again led today's group in boarding boats at the naval academy dock for the hour and a half cruise to the island. President Roosevelt and members of his cabinet had remained there overnight.

Representative Maury Maverick, Texas, leader of a self-styled house liberal bloc, said he had urged the president yesterday to keep congress in session until all of his program was on the statute books. To this, Maverick said the president replied:

"We're going through."

The Texan said he did not go into the legislative program with the president in detail, but insisted he had mentioned the Roosevelt court bill specifically.

A group of opponents of the court bill said, however, they had not heard that measure mentioned.

The visitors spent most of the day strolling about the island where prominent Democrats maintain an exclusive two story clubhouse.

'Propaganda' Is Hit at Conclave

Young Democrats Told 'Same Powerful Interests' Fight Roosevelt

Portage, Wis. —(AP)— Jack Walter, Sheboygan, Wis., lawyer, called upon Young Democrats today to lead a fight against "propagandists" who attack the Roosevelt administration. He gave the keynote address at the fourth annual state convention of the Young Democrats.

He urged the delegates not to rest on the laurels of President Roosevelt's victory at the polls last November.

"The same powerful interests that so bitterly opposed the president in the election last November are continuing relentlessly through a controlled press and many other forces at their disposal to discredit the administration at every turn," Walter said.

"Nothing would be more consistent with a much-needed policy of expansion and renewed activity in the Young Democratic Clubs of America than the adoption of a well-organized plan, on a national scale, to once more get actively into the fight, challenge these propagandists at every opportunity and broadcast the purpose and progress of the administration . . . . And I see no reason why such a plan might not have its beginning right here in this convention hall."

Walters declared the present outbreak of labor disturbances was an indication of "the need of federal legislation modeled after and in accord with the principles of NRA.

"We can rest assured," he said "that before the present session of congress has ended the administration will come forward with legislation designed to meet the needs of the people both social and economic."

Mistakes Aged Mother For Burglar; Kills Her

Birmingham, Ala. — (AP) — Mrs. Mary Zwald, 86, was shot and killed early today and police said her 61-year-old son, John, had fired on her in the dark kitchen of their home, mistaking her for a burglar. County Investigator G. M. Evans returned a verdict of accidental death. He said the son was prostrated with grief.

Missing Monroe Girl Writes She's in Utah

Monroe, Wis. —(AP)— Parents of Geraldine Davis, 17, who disappeared from her home here, June 13, said today they had received a letter from her from Salt Lake City, Utah, where she said she had found employment. The girl said she had successfully hitch-hiked "without walking more than 12 blocks all the way."

"I DON'T CARE"

Captain James L. Mooney of the Chicago police department, is shown as testified in Washington, D. C., before the senate post office committee concerning the bloody Memorial day massacre at South Chicago in which 10 persons were killed. Mooney said: "We had to do what we did and we did it. I don't care if people there were killed. If we hadn't—there'd have been more." The riot occurred near A Republic Steel Co. plant affected by the C. I. O. called steel strike.

Witness Tells How Hunt Threw Money to Crowd

Describes 'Gorgeous Lights' in Moments of Religious Fervor

Los Angeles—(AP)—A lavish spender is John Wuest Hunt, heir to a candy fortune and head of Father Divine's chamber of commerce department, says witnesses at his trial of Mann act charges.

Harold B. "John the Baptist" Smith said Hunt, grandson of the man who gave the world lollipops, had moments of high religious fervor when he gave away $1,000 bills, laughed a great deal—and saw lights.

The lights, Smith testified, surrounded Delight Jewett, 17-year-old Denver school girl whom Hunt, Smith and two gray-haired women, all white, are accused of transporting to Beverly Hills for immoral purposes.

"I didn't see 'em myself," admitted Hunt, "but John said they were gorgeous—brilliant and of different colors, like pink and red and silver."

Smith said Father Divine put him and Hunt in charge of his chamber of commerce department and sent them out to build up a huge trade empire. They crossed the continent in Hunt's $40,000 "golden chariot," holding meetings and banquets.

Sometimes Smith referred to Hunt as "John the Revelator" and again as "Jesus the Christ." He used the latter term when he told about a time in Hunt's Beverly Hills mansion when Hunt "worked up some genuine enthusiasm, reached into his pockets, found $10,000 and flung it about the room telling the people there to 'pick up the fragments.'"

Quite a number of persons, he said, "fell to the floor in this spirit of ecstasy" and picked up the money.

"How much did you get?" asked Federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich.

"I only got a $1 bill. The others got the $1,000 bills."

Milwaukee Man Is New Bar Association Chief

Green Lake, Wis.—(AP)—The state bar association elected Benjamin Poss, Milwaukee, president at the closing session of its annual convention at Lawsonia today.

Judge F. W. Bucklin of West Bend was elected vice president, and G. W. [illegible], Madison, secretary-treasurer for 17 years, was reelected.

The association rejected a resolution by [illegible] of Milwaukee, declaring unethical the practice of lawyers serving as campaign managers in judicial elections. The resolutions committee report, submitted by Jesse Higgee, LaCrosse, recommended rejection and added that "it is impracticable to detail in this report the many and compelling arguments against adoption."

20 Million Spent in Milwaukee Construction

Milwaukee—(AP)—Leon M. Gurda, city building inspector, predicts building construction in Milwaukee will reach the $20,000,000 mark this year in Milwaukee than at any time since 1930 when the permits totaled $31,945,000.

25 Men Fined for Halting Workers During Walkout

Stevens Point, Wis. — (AP) — Fines and costs totalling $375 were imposed by County Judge W. F. Owen today on 25 men who on April 27, 1937, used "threats, intimidation, force and coercion" to prevent 35 non-striking Lullabye Furniture corporation employes from "continuing lawful work and employment."

Guilty pleas were entered by the defendants and M. S. King, Wisconsin Rapids, district attorney pro tempore in charge of strike litigation, recommended that a nominal fine be imposed.

Ten men whose "overt acts were of more serious nature" were fined $15 each and the others were fined $10. The cases arose out of a riotous disturbance which occurred at the Lullabye plant on April 27 when non-strikers were forcibly ejected from the plant.

Annual Church Picnics Planned Here on Sunday

Erb and Pierce Parks Will Be Scenes of Two Affairs

Unions to Vote on Settlement Proposal

Oshkosh—(P)—Voyta Wrabetz and the Rev. Francis Haas, state labor mediators, said today a joint employers' proposal of settlement of the strikes in four remaining woodworking companies would be submitted to the Millmen's Local union.

The employers' proposals, submitted to the mediation board late yesterday at the close of a two-day conference, will be given to the union, affiliated with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, this afternoon. Terms of the proposal were not revealed.

The four firms coming under the proposal are the Foster-Lothman mill, the Radford company, Morgan company, and the McMillen company. The woodworking industry strike, which began April 30, still affects 1,300 men.

Father Haas said concessions had been made on both sides in reaching the proposals. Hours, wages, and working conditions were involved, he said.

Draws Bill on State Swampland

Authorizes Payment to Wisconsin of $1,305,115

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Rep. Bernard J. Gehrmann of Mellen has just introduced a bill which he expects will solve the Indian swamplands situation in Wisconsin as far as legislation is concerned.

Sen. Robert M. LaFollette of Madison is expected to introduce the same measure in the senate. In the last congress an Indian swamplands bill was passed by the senate but was stopped in the house as the result of a ruling by the Wisconsin attorney general which would have made that measure inapplicable.

The new bill authorizes payment of $1,305,115.83 to the state of Wisconsin in compensation for certain timber and swamplands on Wisconsin Indian reservations. Title to the timber and swamplands would then revert to the United States for the benefit of the Indians

The new bill contains no mention of the state's agreeing to take over education of Indian children as did the previous bill. The ruling which killed that measure decreed that all money turned over to the Wisconsin land commission be devoted to a fund for normal schools.

Gehrmann said the new measure has the approval of the Wisconsin land commission, several members of which were in Washington recently in connection with the bill, and also the approval of the Indian Bureau rancor and disorder, was carried by the Farmer-Labor-Progressive members of the LaFollette party with a few Republican and Democratic allies.

On the other side was a coalition majority of all three parties, acting with the sanction of the governor's office, which is working on a call for a special session to deal with major problems that remain.

It took the coalition, of which Edwin A. Blomquist of Adams was the Progressive leader, two hours to steamroller the senate's adjournment resolution through all the motions intended to prevent its adoption.

But that did not end the fight. When the house returned from its luncheon recess to find out where it would pick up and what bills would be given preference, the losers still were in a battling mood.

Objects to Preference

Assemblyman John Grobschmidt (P), Milwaukee, objected to giving preferred status to any senate bills, including the Cashman driver's license bill.

"The senators wished this adjournment resolution upon us. Now let them take their chances with the rest of us," he said.

His argument was picked up by Assemblyman Charles A. Budlong (R), Marinette, who offered a motion to forbid any bill being placed on the calendar as a special order.

Budlong contended the legislature would quit without adopting an "adequate old age pension law," which he said had been promised in the platforms of all three parties.

"What are we, a bunch of cowards?" he yelled. "Are we afraid to meet the issues?"

At this moment word was received that the senate contemplated adjourning until Tuesday.

Assemblyman Andrew J. Biemiller (P), Milwaukee, flaring with anger, jumped to his feet to criticize those who had voted for adjournment.

Assails Adjournment

"I hope you realize, now, what you have done," he said. "The senate has no intention of doing any work."

The silence of the majority group was broken by Assemblymen John T. Pritchard (P), Eau Claire, and Nicholas Bichler (D), Belgium. Pritchard challenged anyone to tell him how to vote, and Bichler replied that getting rid of "some of the rotten legislation put in here" will save the money of the taxpayers.

A round of applause from the majority bloc followed.

Then the assembly decided to get down to work and adopted a resolution to meet every morning from 8 to 12, every afternoon from 2 to 5, and every night from 7 to 9 o'clock for the rest of the session.

But the resolution had scarcely been approved when the house was informed that the senate definitely had determined not to return until Tuesday night. The assemblymen dropped their bill books and went home. They will come back at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Alderman Suggests Parking Meters Be Tried Out on Soldiers Square

Use of Soldier square instead of College avenue for a trial of parking meters may be suggested by Alderman J. J. Franzke to the common council.

The council has been asked by the retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce to drop its plan to try out parking meters on four blocks of College avenue for six months.

Alderman Franzke pointed out that use of Soldiers square would penalize no merchant or customer as far as business is concerned. The parking spaces on the square are reported to be used mostly by business men and clerks who leave their cars there throughout the day, he said, and parking meters would discourage this practice.

There are no parking restrictions on the street at the present time, according to Franzke, and meters would show in a short time whether shoppers prefer paying a small sum to park for a limited period of time.

Soldiers square is in the proximity of the business section of the city and any person using a pay stall would have ample time to complete his shopping before his parking time was used up, Alderman Franzke explained.

If the meters met with the approval of the business men and customers they could readily be installed along the avenue, he said.

Bids on parking meters are now being taken by the common council and they are not due for about two weeks. The protest of the retail division of the chamber of commerce has not yet been brought before the council.

Thinks Roosevelt Should End Doubts On 1940 Election

Supporters Put Him in Embarrassing Position, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—President Roosevelt has been placed in an awkward and embarrassing position with respect to a third term by his own friends and supporters. There is no good reason ordinarily why a president of the United States serving his second term must announce that he will not violate the precedent whereby the American people have ever been asked to vote for a president for a third consecutive term.

Lawrence

But when the issue is raised by the governor of one of the largest states in the Union, a state which has played recently so vital a part in the campaign, the questioning as to a president's purposes becomes concrete.

Mr. Roosevelt tried by means of a radio speech last March to tell the country plainly that he had no third term ambitions. He said he did not want to leave the country in the condition which Buchanan left it to Lincoln. Nevertheless there were many people who at the time expressed the fear that, if a crisis did occur, Mr. Roosevelt might feel that he couldn't leave the country to govern itself but that it would need his own services.

Maybe Mr. Roosevelt had no such idea. Yet there are just a few words which can dispel all doubts, and, until those words now are spoken, the acts of the president are bound to be construed as tinged with a political purpose. Those words have been spoken before by individuals suggested for the presidency, namely General Sherman shortly after the war between the states. The general said: "I will not accept if nominated."

Statement Needed

Mr. Roosevelt's position in the next three years as an independent force would be immeasurably strengthened if he stated now that he is not a candidate for a third term and would not accept if nominated. Unfortunately, until he makes a statement as unequivocal as this, his own henchmen will go on the assumption that his silence is significant of a receptiveness to a draft movement. Already the secretary of war in Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet has indicated that the president might have to run again. But Governor Earle of Pennsylvania, himself prominently mentioned for the Democratic nomination, comes out unqualifiedly for the president for a third term in 1940.

Knowing how important a role Pennsylvania's big delegation plays in a national convention this means that Mr. Roosevelt is being considered as a probable nominee by his own party leaders. It takes only a majority vote now instead of a two-thirds vote to nominate in a Democratic convention, hence it would be relatively simple for the office-holders who dominate the party delegations to bring about Mr. Roosevelt's renomination.

Senator Wagner of New York says Mr. Roosevelt will not "seek" the nomination. He does not need to seek it. His very silence will be encouragement to his lieutenants. A nod from Postmaster General Farley and the bandwagon will start among the federal office holders.

Back in 1912, when Theodore Roosevelt after a lapse of four years sought to be made president again after two terms, Woodrow Wilson said: "There is no indispensable man."

Federal Machine

The question to be raised by the third term controversy is whether a federal machine operated with huge federal funds can perpetuate a president in office. Members of congress from the president's own party will strive to secure the passage of an amendment to the federal constitution limiting presidents to a single term of six years. The charge of dictatorship will be heard again and again.

Literally, of course, there is nothing in the constitution to prevent a third term for a president. The American people have by custom frowned upon the idea of a third term ever since George Washington gracefully declined the honor. Will Franklin Roosevelt break the precedent set by the father of the American republic? Governor Earle of Pennsylvania apparently thinks so, and, when someone of his prominence in the Democratic party makes such a pronouncement, the opponents of a third term president have every right to assume until told otherwise that this is the plan of the present administration, however it may be camouflaged by modest words about not "seeking" the nomination, or "wanting to leave the White House in 1940." The way to stop further speculation on the subject is for Franklin Roosevelt to say publicly what Theodore Roosevelt said a few hours after his election in 1904:

"A wise custom which limits the president to two terms regards the substance and not the form, and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination."

Use Caution on Highways On Holiday, Officials Ask

Automobile accidents on state highways may be expected to cause more deaths than fire-crackers or drowning mishaps over the July 4 holiday, the Wisconsin Highway commission warned in a bulletin today. The commission urged citizens of the state to use the utmost care in keeping down this year's death toll.

Over the holiday last year, there were 152 serious traffic accidents in the state, bringing death to 14 persons and injury to 170. If the present accident rates continue, the traffic toll over the holiday this year may reach 19, but highway officials are hopeful that a safety campaign will keep it under 10.

4 Injured in County

Outagamie county had three serious accidents with four persons over last year's holiday, the commission's records show. There was only one fatality in the nearby counties, one person being killed in Calumet county. The records show: Brown county, three accidents, eight injured; Calumet, three accidents, one killed; Winnebago, four accidents, six injured; Waupaca, one accident, none injured; Shawano, one accident, three injured, and Oconto, three accidents, six injured.

In addition, there were many minor accidents on the streets and highways of these counties last Fourth of July.

If pedestrians would stay off the highways the nights of July 3, 4 and 5, and would cross city streets only at intersections, nearly one-half of the death toll could be avoided, judging by records for holidays in the past. Several of those killed last Fourth were intoxicated, or were struck by drunken drivers. Giant firecrackers dropped inside fragile milk bottles are not half as dangerous as a pint of whiskey mixed with five gallons of gasoline in heavy traffic, the State Highway Commission warns, and the man who tips a canoe is playful when compared with the man who drives at high speed on congested traffic lanes.

Dr. C. D. Grinnells of North Carolina State College says foot and mouth diseases, livestock threat of several years ago, has been eradicated.

Legionnaires to Hold State Meet From Aug. 7 to 11

Unusual Features Are Being Planned for Program

Legionnaires, wives, sons and daughters of the auxiliaries and friends totaling more than 25,000 persons will converge on Milwaukee for the nineteenth annual department convention of the American Legion August 7 to 11.

The program is in the process of completion it was pointed out by Frank L. Greenya, chairman of the convention association at a meeting of its 40 committees in Milwaukee this week.

Appleton will send a large delegation to the convention. The Oney Johnston post battlefield float will be entered in the parade. Two parades will be held on Milwaukee's famous Wisconsin avenue. The first will be that of the 40 et 8 on Saturday night, Aug. 7, and the second will be that of the legion main body which will have in line all legionnaires, auxiliary members, about 40 bands and contingents of the national guard, United States regular army, navy and the Milwaukee police.

Band Contest

There will be two dances at the Schroeder hotel and banquets for the 40 et 8 in the Pfister hotel, and the Past Commanders club in the Plankinton hotel.

On Sunday night, Aug. 8, there will be a 3-hour show on Milwaukee lake front in Juneau park where one of the highlights of the convention program, the band contest will be held together with a pageant of dances by foreign groups in native costumes. This will be followed by a fireworks display in which set pieces featuring many activities of the legion and auxiliaries will be shown. The legion emblem also will be shown in fireworks.

Contests for which the convention association has furnished more than $6,000 in cash prizes and hundreds of trophies will include golf, bridge, Sweet Adeline quartets, rifle and pistol matches, kittenball, bugle and drum corps, drill team and parade features. The bridge tournament is a new innovation in legion convention competition and is drawing a large entry.

The huge Milwaukee auditorium will house most of the business sessions of the convention. Marquette university stadium will be the scene of the drum corps and drill team competition.

This is the first legion department convention to be held in Milwaukee since the original caucus in 1919 presided over by John C. Davis, the first department commander. On Sunday, Aug. 8, there will be ceremonies at the Milwaukee Public service building where a bronze plaque will be placed on the building commemorating the first convention and birthplace of the Legion in Wisconsin.

150th Anniversary of Ruling to be Observed

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Assurance has been given by the post office department, according to Representative Harry Sauthoff of Madison, that there will be issued a special stamp commemorating the Northwest ordinance of 1787.

The stamp will be issued in connection with the 150th anniversary of the passage of the ordinance, considered to be one of the most important documents ever written. It created the northwest territory, which included Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and eastern Minnesota.

Sauthoff said the date of issuance will be announced later.

Manitowoc Assemblyman Wants Highway Funds Segregated

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Assemblyman Francis A. Yindra, (D), Manitowoc county said yesterday afternoon that if the legislature rejects his measure for a segregation of highway department funds, he will attempt to carry the problem to the people in a statewide referendum.

Declaring that if Wisconsin voters knew the bookkeeping system of the state government "their eyes would open", Yindra said that in the event of rejection of his anti-diversion bill, he will introduce a resolution for a referendum on the question

After two hours of wrangling in a torrid assembly chamber, the lower house yesterday engrossed the segregation bill of Yindra and Assemblyman Ora Rice, (R), of Delevan. The measure provides that beginning a year from now all highway commission free funds, namely those not allocated for specific purposes by legislative appropriations, shall be transferred from the general fund to a new fund called the highway fund.

Supported consistently since its introduction three months ago by valley members of the assembly, the bill was engrossed Thursday by a vote of 50 to 45 but only after a stiff fight.

Bitter Debate

A feature of the protracted discussion of the bill was a bitter personal debate between Yindra and the second Manitowoc county assemblyman, David Sigman, Two Rivers, one of the principal Progressive floorleaders. Sigman charged that Yindra's sponsoring of the measure is insincere, that he had introduced it only for reasons of country politics. Despite the fact that Yindra has succeeded in passing a resolution by the Manitowoc county board in favor of the proposal, Sigman said he would continue to oppose the proposition

"My county board has been fit to criticize me for voting as my conscience directs me to vote", yelled Sigman, after Yindra had finished a denunciation of "little Tommy" Duncan, Governor LaFollette's executive secretary, who said Yindra appeared before the joint finance committee privately to oppose the measure "Duncan didn't have the guts to appear against the bill while I was there. He appeared in executive session", said Yindra. Executive sessions are behind closed doors.

Final passage of the bill appeared doubtful yesterday because of the reported imminence of adjournment. If it passes the assembly, the bill will be required to have a hearing in the senate, where the calendar yesterday was more than two weeks in arrears.

MARY AND BUDDY TO WED THIS AFTERNOON

Hollywood—(P)—In a ceremony as private as their romance was quiet, Mary Pickford will become the bride of Buddy Rogers late today.

The one-time "America's sweetheart" and "America's boy friend" will say "I do" at 3 o'clock this afternoon (5 o'clock, Appleton time) in a setting strangely contrasting with the fanfare of their professional careers.

Where a thousand invited guests were admitted and 10,000 fans milled about an exclusive church for the Jeanette MacDonald-Gene Raymond wedding, most recent of Hollywood's big-name nuptials, the Pickford-Rogers guest list numbered only 14—with a big guard of police assigned to see that there are no uninvited additions.

The Rev. James Hamilton Lash, pastor of the Hollywood Congregational church, will read the ceremony in the garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Lighton, friends of the bride and groom. Shortly afterward the couple will embark for a Honolulu honeymoon on the same liner bearing the newly wed Raymonds.

The wedding will be the third for Miss Pickford. Her first husband was Owen Moore, whom she married in 1911, and divorced eight years later. Mary was 16 when she married Moore, who then was 25. Miss Pickford married Douglas Fairbanks, 10 years her senior, in 1920. She divorced him in 1935.

The marriage will be the first for Buddy, 11 years younger than Miss Pickford, who is 43.

The program will open with a welcome song by the Sunday school, "Come Ye Now, One and All," after which the girls of the Sunday school will sing "There is Sunshine in My Soul Today." In honor of the cradle roll's anniversary, members of the Sunday school who were in the cradle roll 10 years ago will sing "God Bless Our Babies Dear." They are Gerta Holz, Ruth Krueger, Ruth Henning, Guenther Holz, Betty Pogrant, Dorothy Yentz, Adeline Krueger, Laverne Gebheim and Arnold Holz.

Included in the primary department program will be a dialogue in which Alice Krueger, Betty Yentz and Charlotte Ledbetter will participate; another dialogue, "Philosophies of Life," in which Theodore Ledbetter, Junior Daelke, Dale Krueger, William Gotcher and Mary Ellen Kleist will take parts; a song, "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus," by a group of boys, Edward Holz, Kenneth Krueger, James Howard, Robert Guenther and Harold Peter Krueger; and songs by the entire department, "When We Work and Play Together" and "Little Drops of Water."

Fatal Accident Was Unavoidable, Inquest Verdict

Coroner's Jury Finds Harry Larson, Victim, Was Negligent

Manawa—Harry Larson, 39, killed when struck by a car driven by Herman Roland, 28, town of Helvetia, early last Sunday morning, came to his death by his own negligence, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury here, Friday afternoon. Members of the jury were Dr. F. S. Lindow, Clifford Allen, E. R. Vaughan, William Stanley, William Wolter, and Ben Stevens, all of Manawa.

Larson, a farm hand employed by Arthur Sturm here, was killed instantly as he walked north along Highway 22 just south of the village limits about 3 o'clock in the morning. Testimony at the inquest before the coroner, Dr. J. C. Johnson, Ogdensburg, and District Attorney Paul E. Roman, Manawa, Waupaca county, brought out that Larson stumbled directly into the path of the Roland machine and the accident was unavoidable. Larson's skull was fractured, he had two broken legs and a broken arm.

Among those who testified were Dr. W. Irvine, Manawa, who was called to examine the body the morning of the accident; Henry Flater, local night watchman, also called by Roland; Robert Winter, who drove the first car that passed after the crash; Sheriff Duncan R. Campbell, Waupaca county official; Carl Tessen, who sold drinks to both Harry Larson and his brother, Leonard Larson, at Tessen's tavern before the accident occurred; Herman Roland, and the latter's companion on the night of the tragedy, Miss Gladys Taggart, rural school teacher.

John Klaehn Will Is Disputed by Daughter

Objections to the administration of the will of John Klaehn, town of Osborn, who died Feb. 25, 1937, were heard by Judge Fred V. Heinemann in county court yesterday. The objections were filed by Mrs. Ida Ploeger, route 1, Seymour, a daughter, who charged the will was not duly executed in the manner provided by law, that Klaehn was not of sound mind and had not sufficient mental capacity to make a will and that the instrument was secured through undue influence. Charles R. Prosser, Seymour, was named as executor of the will, which provided for the administration of $4,700 in personal property. Counsel for both sides presented their arguments yesterday and the case was taken under advisement until they can file briefs.

William Schultz, 61, suffered several fractured ribs and a brain concussion and Seidl suffered a lacerated elbow in the accident, which occurred when the Seidl machine was sideswiped by a hit and run driver, police were told. Schultz was brought to St. Elizabeth hospital where his condition is regarded as good today.

A MOMENTOUS DOCUMENT

The report of the judiciary committee recommending rejection of the President's plan to reorganize the court was unfortunately a long document.

And Americans are not given to reading long documents simply because there is too much to read.

But that document contains so much of literature and was written in the high fervor of patriotic men defending the greatest treasure on the face of the earth for themselves and their children that even ten days after its filing it is worthy of particular note and scrutiny.

The document is eloquent in its logic and powerful in harnessing the English language for its purpose.

Its refutation of the arguments to pack the court will serve as an example:

> "We are told that a reactionary oligarchy defies the will of the majority, that this is a bill to 'unpack' the court, and give effect to the desires of the majority; that is to say, a bill to increase the number of justices for the express purpose of neutralizing the views of some of the present members.
>
> "We are told, but without authority, by those who would rationalize this program, that congress was give the power to determine the size of the court so that the legislative branch would be able to impose its will upon the judiciary. This amounts to nothing more than the declaration that when the court stands in the way of a legislative enactment, congress may reverse the ruling by enlarging the court. When such a principle is adopted, our constitutional system is overthrown."

To the proposition that somewhere in the shadowy past, though under different circumstances, the number of judges had been altered, the judiciary report impresses the significance of precept and example by declaring:

> "When proponents of the bill assert as they have done, that congress in the past has altered the number of justices upon the supreme court and that this is reason enough for our doing it now, they show how important precedents are and prove that we should now refrain from any action that would seem to establish one which could be followed hereafter, whenever a congress and an executive should become dissatisfied with the decisions of the court."

Then the judiciary committee boldly met the issue, met it unflinchingly and with the determination that actuated men at Lexington and Concord:

> "This is the first time in the history of our country that a proposal to alter the decisions of the court by enlarging its personnel has been so boldly made. Let us meet it. Let us now set a salutary precedent that will never be violated. Let us, of the Seventy-fifth Congress, in words that will never be disregarded by any succeeding congress, declare that we would rather have an independent court, a fearless court, a court that will dare to announce its honest opinions in what it believes to be the defense of the liberties of the people, than a court that, out of fear or sense of obligation to the appointing power, or factional passion, approves any measure we may enact. We are not the judges of the judges. We are not above the Constitution."

Switching then to the practical side, bringing into play their various experiences as practical men gained over a lifetime, the committee presented the [illegible] that if it should be correctly [illegible] majority of the court has [illegible]:

> "It is far better that we await orderly but inevitable change of personnel than that we impatiently overwhelm them with new members. Exhibiting this restraint, thus demonstrating our faith in the American system, we shall set an example that will protect the independent American judiciary from attack as long as this government stands."

Upon one side the judiciary committee balanced the high advantages of a wholly independent judiciary and upon the other side it placed in the scales the delay and inconvenience that might result even were we all to concede the court had erred, and it concluded, and rightly, that the delay and inconvenience were as nothing to what would be lost were we to destroy the judiciary's independence:

> "Constitutional democracy moves forward with certainty rather than with speed. The safety and the permanence of the progressive march of our civilization are far more important to us and to those who are to come after us than the enactment now of any particular law. The constitution of the United States provides ample opportunity for the expression of popular will to bring about such reforms and changes as the people may deem essential to their present and future welfare. It is the people's charter of the powers granted those who govern them."

It is clear enough that the American judiciary is safe and it is safe because it will be protected by the people.

But how can those people ever again trust the judgment of the man who as leader of this great nation would have destroyed an equally important part of the government to get it out of the way, so that his imperious will might have full sway?

Nor will the people ever have a better example to convince them how they must hang on with all the tenacity of life to their privileges under the constitution and that when the supreme court withholds certain rights from congress or executive it is generally a boon and an advantage to the people.

BAKER COULDN'T TAKE A JOKE

Down at Milwaukee a young woman who carries the alluring name of Donna Lu Pae was arrested and brought to trial largely upon the evidence of the Morals Squad which insisted that the temperamental Donna had exhibited herself in a dance described as indecent.

Donna claimed, as might be expected, that the dance was a highly artistic affair. In artistic affairs only the prurient-minded peer at the naked body. There is always a heavy fog lying between the shore of art and the country of indecency. At any rate even a bowery mug will reach out toward the standards of art when accused of a breach of our laws that prohibit certain conduct which is, to speak mildly, repugnant to good taste.

In the trial at Milwaukee the attorney for Donna attacked the morals patrol. This is not only the correct tactic, it is the only one. There was the broad reference to a policeman who couldn't be believed under oath, counsel looking intently at Officer Baker as he modestly told the jury he disliked to soil his lips with that ugly word "liar."

After the jury retired Baker became wroth. He accosted the attorney. He inquired how an attorney who claimed to be respectable could so demean himself. The attorney, forgetting that the burlesque called a trial was over, suggested the officer take off his gun and club. And the usual melee resulted.

Some day, but still quite a ways in the future, when America protects its working people from useless strikes and quits making them a pawn in politics, it will also reform its bar so that witnesses are not needlessly abused, humiliated and shamed. Until that time Mr. Baker will have to treat it as a joke.

Of course a joke it is not, and another name for it is quite in order. But whatever the name it will have to be tolerated with the knowledge that police court trials of a certain order are still largely platform duels in which hardly anyone believes hardly anyone else anyway.

MEN LOOK TO THE HILLS

Mountain climbing may be variously classified as a sport, the foolhardy risking of life or as sheer insanity, depending on one's relish of danger. Comparatively few engage in it. The scientific aspects of mountain climbing such as they may be, hold less interest for the average man than the vicarious thrill he receives from pictures of climbers in action.

Now comes a report that dread Nanga Parbat in the western Himalayas, highest peak in the British Empire, has claimed the lives of sixteen members of a German expedition. An earlier German party met disaster. Others have died in their attempts to scale the 26,629-foot peak.

One regrets the news. But he can believe that those German scientists and their brave comrades have died as they would have wished.

Somehow, the aspirations of men to climb the highest peak are symbolic of all human striving.

The peaks stand, aloof and cold, challenging human fortitude and human ambition.

Nanga Parbat has claimed new victims. Be assured that other men again will attempt to conquer those sheer precipices, to taste the joys of mastery.

Men are what they are. Not all of them are content to live in savorless security in the valleys. Some of them look up to the sky and are willing to brave great dangers to lift themselves to Life's summit.

So long as this is true, there need be no fear about the future of the race.

Opinions Of Others

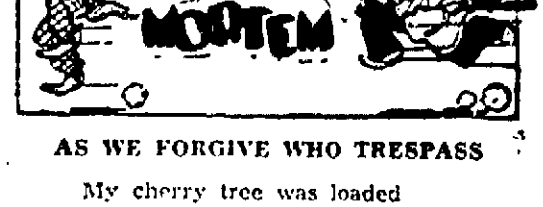
GUFFEY COAL BILL

While a good many senators feel that parts of the revised Guffey coal act, which the United States supreme court once rejected, are invalid according to the prevailing interpretation of the Constitution, it was passed, with minor amendments. It was passed by the house some time ago and now is before the house again with the amendments. The probabilities are that it will become law for there is no question about administration support.

The main public objection to the act is not its purpose, but the method by which it aspires to obtain results. The people are not averse to the stabilization of the soft coal industry. While it is declining owing to the severity of competition, it is an essential industry and its troubles have for many years been a cause of distress in coal producing areas and in the market.

Under this plan, however, the industry is to be regulated by a commission of seven $10,000-a-year men, with a large corps of employes—all exempt from civil service requirements. The commission is to wield its power by assessing a heavy tax on operators and then refunding most of the tax to the operators that comply with its orders, chiefly by running their mines at less than capacity. This is the use of the taxing power not for raising revenue, as the Constitution contemplates, but for the coercion of leaders of an industry. The commission has the power to fix minimum prices and to set up and enforce a code of fair practice. But the senate rejected Senator Borah's amendment to exempt operators from the anti-trust laws. This leaves all the risk of compliance on them.

The senate further failed to assert the people's interest when it declined to add a provision against sit-down strikes in the industry. The bill not only attempts to seize the rights of management from ownership and bestow it on a national commission, but fails to protect the property from unlawful possession. Its authors professed an earnest effort to avoid the objections raised by the court when it invalidated the first act. If they have succeeded, few large industries are safe from naturalization.—Indianapolis News.



AS WE FORGIVE WHO TRESPASS

My cherry tree was loaded
With cherries ripe and red,
First tree I looked at mornings
And last one before bed.
But cherry birds were stealing
My fruit at break of day,
I held and aimed a rifle,
Then let them fly away.
"As we forgive who trespass"
A thought that held my hand,
For nature grew the cherries
And birds don't understand.

And then I robbed my bee-hive
Of honey they had stored,
I knew they had a surplus
No need for them to hoard.
An angry bee then stung me
Just underneath my eye,
I raised my hand to swat her—
That bee must surely die.
"As we forgive who trespass"
Again I held my hand
That busy bee is living,
I hope I understand.

If the city fathers were only a little more far-sighted, they could have voted the parking meter trial without worry and without subsequent fuss.

Sure, instead of ordinary parking meters, they could have ordered SLOT MACHINE PARKING METERS.

People would flock to use them.

Just imagine hitting the jackpot right after parking the family car.

It's collossal.

It Would Probably Interest You to Know: That no one can fill the place of Clarence J. (Kewpie) Kleiber, best friend a man could hope to have. That what tribute has gone to him before in this column is only the ability of a few people to write part of what they feel and is but an atom of the sentiment of a host of other unheard from friends. That Kutz wishes he could trade places with Mrs. G. W. of Kaukauna long enough to write verse to give vent to his feeling and to partially reconcile that empty void created by the accident that took the life of a pal and fellow worker.

Now that the mediation board, appointed by Frances Perkins, and approved by Mr. Big, has been unable to accomplish what was hoped for it (possessing no authority, what could you expect), the problem goes right back on FDR's lap. And yet, this baby that has been sitting on the presidential lap for some time, squalling its head off, may still be ignored for some time to come while Mr. Big indignantly complains about the neighbor's children.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

AT NIGHT

Suspended in the darkness between night
And dawn, the petty problems of tomorrow
Assail me. . . . All my birds of hope take flight,
And I am haunted by remembered sorrow.

But with the morning, dreams of courage wake.
The shadows fade beneath the sun's bright ray.
And I arise, and bravely undertake
The tasks that will insure a better day.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

F. H. Colburn of Shiocton was reelected president of this district of the Wisconsin State League of Postmasters at the final session in Waupaca Saturday morning.

A wage increase was denied nearly 50,000 conductors and trainmen on 55 western railroads by a board of arbitration Saturday at Chicago. They asked an average advance of $1 a day. In denying the increase the board held that they now are receiving wages 71 per cent greater than the wages paid the same employes on eastern roads.

Miss Clara Steffen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Steffen, 1621 N. Morrison street, and Ben Kiefer, Black Creek, son of Nicholas Kiefer of Brillion, were married this afternoon at the parsonage of the First English Lutheran church. They will live at Black Creek, where Mr. Kiefer is manager of a cheese factory.

IODIZED SALT PREVENTS GOITRE

Since 1924 the Michigan state health board, state medical society and other authorities have urged the universal use of iodized salt in place of ordinary salt, as an efficient means of supplying the essential iodin to prevent goitre.

This has proved efficient and safe. For a while some of the noisy surgeons in that part of the country made a good deal more noise than the facts warranted, in their effort to frighten people about uisng iodized salt. In spite of that, however, the number of goitre operations done in the state of Michigan has decreased steadily since the bulk of the population learned to buy and use iodized salt instead of ordinary salt. Iodized salt costs the same and of course, no human taste can detect one part of potassium iodide in 5,000 parts of salt.

In Midland County, Michigan, among 3,089 school children from homes where iodized salt is used instead of plain salt only 58 were found with any signs of goitre. In the same community among 1,184 children from homes where iodized salt was not used, 175 were found with signs of goitre.

No case of hyperthyroidism was found among 47,360 Michigan children from homes where iodized salt is used regularly.

In Ohio the Cleveland health department analyzed three different brands of what purported to be "iodized salt" and found no iodin in the salt. Several brands were found to contain only a small fraction of the quantity authorized by the health authorities and perhaps claimed on the label.

We have long used iodized salt instead of ordinary salt in our own home, but I have never had too much confidence in the minute quantity of iodin one can get in that way, even if the salt contains all the potassium iodide it purports to contain. I like to have an occasional nip of plain old brown tincture of iodin, or spell it iodine if you wish to be obstinate about it, in a drink of water—at least once a week, one or two or three drops of tincture of iodin—the same liquid commonly used as a first aid disinfectant for minor wounds. For some persons a drop a day is all right for several months in the year. I do not believe such an iodin ration will ever do anybody any harm.

Goitre, the deformity of the neck, is by no means the only ill which a suitable iodin ration prevents. It prevents some cases of feeblemindedness (cretinoid type, or outspoken cretinism), it prevents delay or failure to mature normally thru puberty (hypothyroidism). It prevents many cases of myxedema. It prevents thousands of cases of tumorous goitre and sometimes cancer of the thyroid, which are only sequels of simple goitre.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Wart on Sole

Sept 12, had painful wart on sole for about a year. Old doctor suggested apply raw onion. We did. Wart became very painful to walk on, but large bunion pad over it made walking more comfortable. Wart came out, and so far (almost a year) it has not come back (Mrs. D. A.)

Answer—Thank you. At least the treatment is harmless to try.

Care of Baby

Our baby weighs only 11 pounds at the age of six months. He weighed six and one half pounds at birth. He has been fed on a special milk mixture with dextrimaltese. (Mrs. A. S. H.)

Answer—Send ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address, for 'The Brady Better Baby Book." Perhaps your baby has not had his ration of vitamin D. Perhaps you failed to increase the strength of the milk mixture or to supplement it with tomato juice or orange juice and especially with banana.

Calcium

Have not enough calcium in my blood. Please give a list of foods containing calicum. (Miss K. S.)

Answer—Milk, cheese, beans, entire plain wheat, nuts, peanuts, egg yolk, raw cabbage, lettuce, all greens, raw carrots, raw turnip. Exposure of naked skin to midday sunlight or to ultraviolet rays from suitable lamp promotes utilization of calcium. Daily ration of fish liver oil, or vitamin D synthetic also increases absorption and metabolism of calcium and phosphorus.

Your Birthday

"CANCER"

If June 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 3 to 5 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 to 11 a. m., from 5 to 7 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

Sentimental influences will prevail this day. The cable, wireless, telegraph and telephone will be the mediums through which many happy messages will come, brightening many lives. Avoid pressure methods to carry any point or to get any desired result, for nothing is likely to be gained thereby. Preconceived ideas are liable to be upset in an agreeable way this day, probably in some social activity. If you give children the opportunity to do so they will be the medium through which much amusement and happiness can be introduced into the home circle. Unless restraint is placed upon the imagination, it is apt to soar into the realm of fantastic impossibilities, causing questionable reactions. Married and engaged couples, and those entertaining matrimonial hopes, had best stick to actual facts this day, and do no romancing.

If a woman and June 27 is your birthday, you love to be active, idleness being apt to fatigue and irritate your otherwise placid disposition. Be careful that you never let "the green-eyed monster," JEALOUSY, cause you to be unduly apprehensive or suspicious. You ought to take an interest in your local and national affairs, for by so doing you may advance your own. You are likely to have many opportunities to act as a peace-maker, and it will be good judgment for you to serve in this capacity whenever it is possible. Some project you are apt to become interested in, is liable to bring you favorably into the limelight of publicity. If you have any inclination to teach, paint, write, sell, act, radio broadcast or lecture, you should do so because success in all likelihood will crown your efforts. You probably will display excellent judgment in your selection of a husband.

The child born on June 27, develops, during adolescense, the gift of quick discernment. It may be rather fastidious regarding its personal appearance and food. Everything seems most propitious in so far as this youngster future is involved.

If a man and June 27 is your natal day, you will succeed if you do not allow discouragement to slow down your efforts. Your personal affairs seem to be entering a cycle wherin prosperity will bring you contentment. Through contracting, building, investing, selling, manufacturing, painting, theatrical work or writing you ought to have a run of luck.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Standing on the after deck of a customs cutter the other morning as she raced toward the lower harbor, I glanced up suddenly and gasped from the thrill that always accompanies a sight of the New York skyline.

That is one of the most over-emphasized and written-about features of New York, yet, like recurrent electrical shocks, it never fails to impress and hold you.

Forty minutes or so later, having transferred to an incoming liner from the Argentine, I was prowling through the ship looking for an American rancher who was coming home after 20 years in the South American pampas country.

Suddenly I discovered a tall, rangy fellow standing on deck, staring towards the tiers of turrets that climb higher and higher above New York.

"That's a noble sight, isn't it?" I broke in, introducing myself.

"Yes, it is," he said. "You'd never think anything could be quite like it."

"There isn't anything like it, not anywhere."

"Where's the old Flatiron building?", he wanted to know.

"There it is—it used to be one of the seven wonders, but it's almost dwarfed now, isn't it?"

"It sure is."

"Tell me, after 20 years in the Argentine, how does it seem to come up the harbor and catch a glimpse of something like this?"

He swung around and regarded me with amazement. "Twenty years in the Argentine. You've got me mixed up. I live in New York. I haven't been away from my office in the Flatiron building more than a month at a time in 15 years."

* * *

Well, it turned out that he was a native New Yorker returning from a little vacation, and his interest in the town was such that he wanted to share his knowledge with somebody else. He thought I was a stranger having a first view from the harbor.

Which brings us to the point of this essay and emphasizes the tremendous hold the New York skyline has over everyone who sees it. If it elicits ohs and ahs from its own natives, who see it every day, how must it affect visitors from Europe who suddenly behold it for the first time!

* * *

Lounging in the Ritz bar of an afternoon, swapping small talk, I suddenly noticed a man of perhaps 30, drinking alone, and looking as if he craved companionship. Several moments later, a wee bit unsteadily, he came over. "I'm sorry to break in, but this town—this big viciously impersonal town, is getting on my nerves. There's 7,000,000 people here and not a soul to talk to. Will you let me buy you a drink?"

"Sure," we said, "sit down."

"Say," he cried, "I'll bet you consistently break 80." He was delighted to have somebody—anybody—to talk to.

Withal its attractions, it's strange how completely alone a stranger can be in New York.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Postal officials turned hand springs in an effort to find precedent for refusing to deliver food through picket lines to non-striking workers in the Republic Steel company mills at Niles and Warren, Ohio.

They didn't find any precedent. It had never been done before, but, nevertheless, they insisted it was not "new" policy.

Postal officials chose Jesse M. Donaldson, deputy first assistant, to announce the policy. He had been with the postoffice department so many years he could not be accused of being a New Dealer trying to further New Deal aims.

* * *

Explanation

Of course at the time the policy was publicly announced, the postmasters at Niles and Warren already had refused to deliver food to the men besieged in the mills. So the policy had to fit the facts.

Donaldson was besieged by news men seeking explanations. Why was the postoffice taking sides in the strike? It is not, Donaldson hotly replied. It is being neutral. It has always been neutral in labor wars. But helping to shut off food from the men in the mill is going to help the strikers starve them out. Is that neutral? Donaldson insisted the department was acting properly in refusing to handle "extraordinary" shipments.

He could not recite precedents, but had plenty of hypothetical cases. If a riot broke out and it became dangerous for postal employes to deliver mail in the riot area, deliveries would be stopped. He agreed, however, that it was not danger to the postal employes in Niles that had prompted the action.

He insisted the postoffice department would be "neutral" in event of an express company strike. But if put to the test, would the department refuse to handle a regulation package just because the strike-ridden express company could not handle it? He declined to answer that one.

* * *

Innovation

The refusal to deliver mailed packages of food evidently was a whopping innovation. Heretofore, use of the mail has been refused principally for police or public health reasons. Salacious literature may not be sent through the mail, nor may explosives, lottery tickets, false or misleading medicine advertising, or kidnap notes.

Congress in 1935 authorized the postal department to deny use of the mails to public utility holding companies operating in defiance of the holding company act. But even the Wagner act, pro-union as it is, did not give the postoffice department authority to hold up food shipments to laborers working in opposition to John L. Lewis' C.I.O. The department did that on its own hook.

Editor, Post-Crescent—In one of your recent editorials which touched upon the current labor troubles certain comments and statements indicated, to me at least, that civil strife to a degree greater than now exists, was visualized if not advocated and that a blood letting "purge" was "biologically necessary." Do such imported European-Nazi philosophies fit into the North American picture any better than the imported European philosophies of the Socialists and the Communists.

Must we be guided by Europe and do we have to duplicate in a futile attempt to retain the status quo the Old World "blood letting" and "purging." Has civil strife and war ever benefited anyone at any time, and are we such emotional nit-wits that in order to relieve our frustrations we must individually sock somebody on the nose or with a mob use clubs, guns and gas on another mob. Mobs will settle nothing whether they wear uniforms or overalls, but they could unsettle everything and such unsettling would most likely not be very nice.

When a mass of matter changes its contours there are upheavals, earthquakes, etc. Social changes en mass are going on whether or not we know it or like it else there could not be so much evidence of blind leadership by the blind and attempts to fix up a case of ptomaine poisoning with a diet of more sick fish. Our "Rendezvous with Destiny" is not yet but it is getting closer.

Yours very truly,

State Commission Will Hold Hearing On Flood Problem

Highway Bodies Will Meet At New London Tuesday Morning

New London—The state highway commission will conduct a hearing on the flood problems and conditions in and around New London at the council chambers of the city hall Tuesday, according to a communication received by Mrs. J. C. Freeman, city clerk, from Senator Mike Mack of Shiocton.

The meeting will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning with members of the New London common council, the Waupaca and Outagamie county highway commissions and interested town officials attending.

The hearing is the result of an invitation extended by the council to the state commission several weeks ago. A dinner for the parties will be held at the Elwood hotel Tuesday noon.

Engineering data and maps will be studied to substantiate claims that bridges on Highway 54 are inadequate to carry off the flood waters of the Embarrass river as provided by the city's bridge on Highway 45. Instrumental in securing the hearing are Outagamie county farmers who claim the backing of waters caused much damage to their lands last spring.

File Petition For Recognition

New London Furniture Workers Request Bargaining Agency

New London—A petition for official recognition as the sole bargaining agent at the Edison Wood Products plant here has been filed with the National Labor Relations board at Milwaukee, by the New London Furniture Worker's, local 1642, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, it was revealed by F. M. Griswold, president, after a business meeting at labor hall last night.

The local unit has asked for an investigation and certification of the representation of employees at the plant to secure the official sanction of the board. A representative is expected in New London in the near future to conduct the investigation.

While there is no doubt in any quarter that the Furniture Workers local has enrolled a majority of workers at the plant, official certification is necessary to complete a pending workers' agreement with the company, Griswold said. The plant employees are 100 per cent members of the local union unit.

Grain Crops for Hay to Be Cut in Milk Stage

Waupaca — Grain crops cut for hay in order to be considered hay rather than grain, are required to be cut while still in the milk stage, according to Claude Wickard, director of the north central region in a recent letter to the Waupaca County Agricultural Conservation committee, composed of Almo Larson, Waupaca; Robert J. Neely, Bear Creek, and Arthur H. Roepke, Clintonville.

Therefore, farmers who are using oats, barley, or any other grain as a neutral crop will need to cut such hay before grain forms.

According to this recent communication, those who use grain crops for hay will be asked to have two neighbors witness the fact that the grain hay was cut early enough to meet requirements.

SAILBOATING POPULAR WITH YOUNG SET

Almost every day since spring Lake Winnebago has been dotted with white sails, for the water-loving population of Appleton and Neenah has not been slow at taking advantage of the fine sailing facilities the broad expanse of the lake offers. Not only the men, but women and children as well, have become master skippers, as these pictures indicate. Above are Mary and Kimmie Stuart of Neenah putting up the sail on their boat, the U-2, just before leaving the pier across from the Neenah-Nodaway Yacht club at Neenah for a sail on the lake. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Kimberly Stuart, 582 E. Wisconsin avenue, Neenah, and experienced skippers.

An exception to the white sails which are seen most frequently is the green sail on Tommy Orbison's blue Cape Cod boat, in which he is shown at the right. Tommy is such an ardent sailor that last summer, before he got this boat, he put a mast and sail on a row boat and did his sailing in that. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Orbison, 214 S. Rankin street, who have a cottage on the northern shore of Lake Winnebago. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Miss Faye Laahs, Clintonville, and Mrs. Norman Sennett, New London, were hostesses at a postnuptial shower Thursday evening in honor of Mrs. Victor LaMarche, the former Miss Lucille Gensler. The affair was held at the home of Mrs LaMarche's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gensler on E. Twelfth street, Clintonville. Twenty guests were present for a dessert-luncheon, after which the evening was spent informally. Gifts were presented to the former Miss Gensler, whose marriage to Victor LaMarche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred LaMarche of New London, took place in January. Mrs. LaMarche is a graduate of Clintonville High school with the class of 1933 and has for the last several years been employed as an operator at the Shirley Beauty Shoppe. After July 1 the young couple will reside at New London, where Mr. LaMarche is employed.

Enrollment in both urban and rural elementary school of America is declining.

BOOK REVIEW

Aaron Burr Was Great Egoist, Says Holmes Alexander in Biography

By Jean Wiley Thickens

Not since Euripides' immortal tragedy of "Alcetis" which thrilled Greek audiences of 438 B. C., has fiction or history produced a more thorough egoist than Aaron Burr, whose biography by Holmes Alexander is a best-seller of 1937. His egotism was so immense as to be almost pathological. When one studies Burr's antecedents however one is not surprised to find a young man of unbalanced mental development.

Burr's father was normal enough, indeed he was brilliant as well as hard-working, ambitious and conscientious. He was an English aristocrat, an ordained Presbyterian minister and the founder of Princeton University, then known as Nassau Hall. His mother was one of the eight daughters of Jonathan Edwards, a religious fanatic and witch-burner who was finally dismissed from his church for his extreme fanaticism. Esther Edwards was beautiful, clever and accomplished but she had a most unfortunate heritage. Three of her close relatives were raving maniacs who had murdered members of their own families. In spite of this menacing eugenic prospect, preacher Burr chose to marry his heart's desire and close his eyes to the possible consequence to his prospective offspring.

Two children were born to the young couple—Aaron Burr junior and Sally—before both parents died within six months of each other and while their children were still very young. Timothy Edwards, an uncle, little realized the trouble and worry in store for him as guardian of the brilliant but erratic young Aaron, who resisted all efforts at discipline and became violently angry because he was not allowed to enter Princeton at the age of eleven. He soon discovered that hereditary brilliance was no substitute for hard work. It was not until two years later that he was admitted to college. Unfortunately this salutary lesson had no permanent effect on the arrogant youth and as a consequence he spent the next sixty-eight years of his life in a futile effort to get something for nothing in business, politics and society.

His next major disappointment was his failure to be appointed a general in the Revolutionary forces at the age of nineteen. General Washington considered that young Burr had been sufficiently rewarded for his brilliant but erratic military career by a colonelcy. Aaron however felt otherwise, and spent months plotting with Gates for Washington's downfall, in retaliation for the imagined slight to his military genius.

His legal career was equally brilliant and equally unstable, while his methods closely resembled those of some of our present-day shysters who cater to the underworld. He never accepted a case unless he was sure of winning it, and he never quibbled at the shadiest means of winning. Desire for wealth and fame, and his inveterate habit of chasing every petticoat which fluttered in front of his glittering black eyes, were the causes of his downfall, in spite of his unusual mental attainments.

The only two persons whom Burr ever really loved were his wife (who was ten years his senior and a widow with five half-grown children when he met her) and his daughter Theodosia. Both of his loved ones were taken from him in most tragic fashion. In spite of his real love for his wife, conjugal fidelity was never practiced by him at any time. He completely lacked the slightest elements of patriotism or personal fidelity, and he never hesitated to sell out his closest friends in order to gain some political or financial ends. As a result, at the end of his long and eventful career all men's hands were turned against him and he died in disgrace and poverty, deserted by all except a few of his own cohorts whose lowly ambitions and aims resembled his own.

There is a decided tone of sadness and futility in this very entertaining biography; sadness at the terrific waste of potential power and greatness. It is the story of a blasted life, of glorious capabilities prostituted to unworthy ends. The author, Holmes Alexander, is a descendant of one of those reckless adventurers who joined forces with Burr in New Orleans in his colossally impractical attempt to separate the western half of the infant nation and set himself up as ruler of a new state.

Besides being a fascinating character study and an amusing record of a nineteenth century Casanova, the book presents a true and comprehensive picture of the social, political and historical trends of that time. It is authentic in every detail. "Aaron Burr" is easy reading and is full of good red meat. Take it with you when you start out on your Summer's vacation.

Many Families Leave Kaukauna As Mill Closes

Union Bag Transfers Some Employes to Eastern Location

Kaukauna — The ghost of the Union Bag mill looks down on the Fox river today, the river that turned its wheels for more than 60 years.

Employes gathered at the office door last night to receive their pay checks for the last time. Some of their fellow workers are going to the company's plant at Hudson Falls, N. Y., some have secured jobs at Thilmany's mill, a couple at the Combined Locks Paper company, but most of them are still without work. The mill is idle, the plant having shut down June 16 and the offices yesterday. A few lights showed inside, just enough to serve the watchman's purposes.

Eleven of the mill's personnel, mostly foremen and skilled workmen, are being sent to the Hudson Falls plant. Dr. Karl R. Karlson, resident manager, left this morning with his family for the east, but he will return next week to finish business connected with the closing of the mill. Alfred Agrell, superintendent, will also go to the eastern plant.

Leave For East

Donald Grebe and Clement Coenen, from the chemistry laboratory, left yesterday on the 1,200 mile trip to the New York city, as did Jacob Hovde, paper clerk, and Anton Rausch, who worked with the millwrights.

Fred Nickles, finishing room foreman, and his family, which includes two other Union Bag employes, left last Sunday for Hudson Falls. Ned Nickles is a finishing room worker, and Miss Nedra Nickles an office emplye.

He Will Remain

John Simons, foreman, will stay in Kaukauna as caretaker of the mill property. One man of those offered employment in the eastern mill preferred to stay at Kaukauna.

The shutdown affected 107 mill workers. Of these six are known to be hired by Thilmany's mill, two by the Combined Locks mill, one is taking a position in Milwaukee, and one has an opportunity to work at the Moloch Machine Works.

A part of the mill's finishing room is being moved to Hudson Falls to make the especially processed paper that was made only at the Kaukauna plant. The super calendar stacks, the washer and dryer, the rewinders, and embosser are being sent east.

Inspect Property

The rest of the mill property will remain as it is at Kaukauna Dr. Karlson reports that several mill operators have called at the plant to look at it, but have not expressed definite intentions of buying or renting the property

The Union Bag mill began operation in Kaukauna in 1874 and ran since then, with one period of inactivity. The Kaukauna plant was engaged in manufacturing paper that was used in making bags and paper products by the Union Bag company.

Water power, which first lured its builders to place their mill on the banks of the Fox river, furnished about one third of the power necessary for running the plant at the time it closed down.

Paper manufacture ceased January 16. Office people worked until yesterday and a small crew worked shipping out the paper on hand after manufacture stopped.

Bill Alger pitched Walsh's team to its victory and Jim Sanders worked behind the plate. Sherman Powers pitched and Steve Andrejeski caught for the losers. In the second game of the double bill Connie Hamer pitched for Verbeten's team and Calvin Spice caught. Femal pitched and Haen caught for the losers.

Don Reichel pitched for the winning Cubs in the junior league, while Sparky Langlois caught. Sanders pitched for the losers in the absence of their regular hurler, Bucky Ives, and Rohlinger caught.

STAR AND STAFF FOR THE BIG SHOW

Eleanor Van Dyke, left, holds the all important money box as Mary Brandt touches up the billboard advertising the "Big Show" that was staged in Kaukauna yesterday afternoon. Little Patsy Brandt can't quite make out what the sign says, but she was the star of "Precious Pearl," drama that the youngsters presented. The sign, standing prominently on Wisconsin avenue yesterday, reads, "Big-Show. Come to the big show. After show a candy sale. Bring your money. Don't forget. Candy-popcorn-coo aid. All 1c." (Post-Crescent Photo.)

'Precious Pearls' Is Hit, Gate Receipts 61 Cents

Kaukauna—The Brandt children live on Wisconsin avenue near Desnoyer street, and the Van Dykes are just two doors away. And the Brandts have many cousins, the McMorrows, further down Wisconsin avenue, and the McMorrows live near the Vanderloops. And the Webers are on Wisconsin avenue too, and so are many other youngsters.

Behind the Brandt residence is a barn, with a hayloft. The barn plus the children is simple arithmetic, and yesterday the answer was great activity on Wisconsin avenue. The hayloft was swept clean. Old quilts and curtains were taken up to it for stage drapings, and a large cardboard sign on the street announced, in sixth grade script, that the Big Show was at 2 o'clock.

There were six promoters, and they know the value of ballyhoo, for between morning preparations they supplemented their billboard advertising with hand scribed hand bills that they circulated on the street.

"The Precious Pearls" was the name of the drama presented, and it seems to have been of a very serious nature. Dancing and singing between the acts augmented the program.

Two-year old Patsy Brandt evidently was the star of the show, because when the reporter approached with a camera, the group clamored to have her photographed alone. But your reporter was also asked to take Patsy down the ladder from the loft, because she couldn't quite make the steps without her mother's help.

Finances? The six promoters did pretty well. They regretted that they didn't have any more "cool aid" to sell to the correspondent, but they should worry. They already had 61 cents in the diminutive bread pan which served Eleanor Van Dyke for a cash register.

Set Dates for Club's Annual Flower Show

Kaukauna—Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 14 and 15, are the dates set by the Kaukauna Garden club for their annual flower show, which will be held in the corridors of the high school. The date was set at a meeting of the group at the Anton Miller farm, Highway 41, Thursday.

Koehne, Licht in Net Meet Finals

Former Wins From Harold Stuiber, 6 to 1 and 6 to 2

Kaukauna—Art Koehne, seeded in the first division of the Kaukauna High school boys' tennis tournament went into the finals of the meet yesterday by his victory over Harold Stuiber, 6-1, 6-2.

Koehne's was the only match of the semi-finals played as winners of the second round lined up for competition. Bunny Parman, for two years champion of the high school and seeded in the second bracket of the tournament, went into the semis with a victory over Jack Winn. He will oppose Bud Licht in his next match. Licht defeated Luke "Pepper" Martin to go to the semi-finals.

A victory over Gene Peranteau sent Koehne to the semis before he won from Stuiber, who advanced in the tournament by defeating Leo Wolfe.

City Employes Organize Union

Group Will be Affiliated With A. F. Of L.

Kaukauna— City employes of Kaukauna, organized last week as Local 130 of the City, State, County and Municipalities International of the American Federation of Labor, have chosen the Odd Fellows hall as their gathering place for monthly meetings, but have not yet set the meeting day.

At their organization meeting a week ago the members elected William Lambie, president; Edward King vice president; Peter Bergman, secretary; and Martin Heindel, treasurer. Trustees named were Thomas Reardon, Charles Lowry and August Stegeman.

The newly formed union includes all public, city, county and state members. In Kaukauna that means the north and south city road crews, the school janitors, the park attendants, and the bridge tenders, all but the last being city employes. The bridge tenders are hired by the state, and the janitor at the Outagamie Rural Normal school is a county employe.

A committee will be named at the next meeting of the union to make up a set of regulations to govern the working of the members.

Social Items

Kaukauna—Mrs. Patrick McCarty, 108 E. Eighth street, entertained at a card party sponsored by the Altar society of St. Mary's church at her home yesterday afternoon and evening. Sheephead was played and prizes won by Mrs. George Jacobs and Mrs. George Brenzel.

The Kaukauna Women's club will hold its annual picnic at the M. A. Raught cottage at Rockland beach at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. It will be a covered dish party and cards will be played. This is the last meeting of the group before they adjourn for the summer.

Asking Bid Can Pave Way for Laydown Slam

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I am a regular reader of your column and, as the inclosed hand shows, only an average player. The hand occurred in ordinary rubber bridge. It is sent to illustrate (1) your warning against the 'rubber-grabbing' policy (Gold Book, p. 365); (2) the effectiveness of plastic valuation, and (3) how a little imagination and the asking bids, even in the hands of an average player, would have uncovered a sure vulnerable grand slam for defenders against rather optimistic bidding by opening side. As I lacked the imagination and grabbed the rubber (I was South) it is fitting that I supply the sackcloth and ashes. Here is the hand with the bidding as it occurred, and my repentant comments:

"East, dealer.
"North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q 8 7 4
♥ 8 3
♦ A 10 8 7 5 3
♣ 5

WEST
♠ None
♥ J 10 7 6 4 2
♦ Q J 9 2
♣ 9 8 7

EAST
♠ 10 5
♥ K Q 9
♦ 6 4
♣ K Q J 10 6 3

SOUTH
♠ A K J 9 6 3 2
♥ A 5
♦ K
♣ A 4 2

"The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 club	Double [1]	1 heart	1 spade [2]
2 clubs	4 spades [3]	Pass	Pass
Pass

"(1) With 4 sure and 5 probable losers, and the fact that the hand could be played in spades only, a take-out double, which asked for a spade fit, seemed preferable to the risky game forcing two clubs, even with four and one-half honor tricks. Moreover, the double at minimum risk virtually assured me another chance to bid.

"(2) Against West's heart overcall North keenly inferred that the double cried for a spade fit and preferred one spade to two diamonds even with six diamonds.

"(3) My error. I felt that the spade fit insured game, and rubber and failed to visualize that even with only five and one-half-plus honor tricks in combined hands, second round club control and diamond ace would yield a small slam. And West's one heart suggested that North had diamond ace instead of heart king! Moreover, a club asking bid would have tested the question without forcing the bidding above four spades.

"Thus, 4 clubs, asking for second round club control and a first round control outside. I assume that four clubs would be earmarked as an asking bid and not to be mistaken for a "genuine" club bid, especially in view of East's two clubs.

"Four diamonds, showing second round club control and, in view of my singleton king, almost certain diamond ace, not void, thus insuring the small slam.

"Five clubs, asking for third round club control for the grand slam, as my losing heart would be discarded on diamond ace.

"Five no trump, showing third round club control and making seven spades a laydown on the bidding!

"Yours truly, E. H. A. Jr.,
"Cambridge, Mass."

There is no excuse for kicking a man who already has donned the fitting garb of sackcloth and ashes. My correspondent's afterthought as to the proper bidding of the hand, involving the use of asking bids, would have worked out beautifully. I do not agree, of course, with his previous comment that North's spade bid was correct. With only five diamonds and four spades this would have been sound strategy, but the disparity of six diamonds to the ace-ten and four spades to the queen-nothing was too great. Two diamonds was the correct free bid over one heart. South would then bid the spades strongly, and North would support. An asking bid then would show the way to the laydown grand slam.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: What is the correct opening bid on the following: ♠ K Q J 10 8 5 ♥ A ♦ A K 10 9 7 6 ♣ None?

Answer: Two spades.

Today's Menu

SUPPER ON SUNDAY
(Serving Eight)
Salmon Salad Bowl
Fruit Sandwich Loaf Butter
Ripe Olives Cucumber Pickles
Peach Sherbet
White Drop Cakes
Iced Coffee

Salmon Salad Bowl

1½ cups salmon
3 hard-cooked eggs, diced
1 cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped pimientos
¼ cup chopped sweet pickles
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon minced parsley
½ cup salad dressing

Chill ingredients. Combine and serve in a bowl lined with crisp lettuce or any other salad green.

Fruit Sandwich Loaf

3½ cups flour
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup chopped cooked drained apricots
½ cup raisins
1 egg
1 2-3 cups milk
2 tablespoons fat, melted
¼ teaspoon soda

Mix the ingredients and pour into 2 medium-sized loaf pans, which are well buttered. Stand 15 minutes and bake one hour in a moderately slow oven. The bread makes better sandwiches if it is one day old. It may be used the same day it is baked if it is carefully cut.

Peach Sherbet

1½ cups peaches
1½ cups granulated sugar
2 cups milk
¼ cup lemon juice
1 cup thin cream

Mix peaches and lemon juice. Add milk to sugar and cream. Let stand 10 minutes. Slowly pour the milk mixture into peaches and juice. Pour into freezer and freeze until stiff. Remove the dasher and pack sherbet 2 hours to "ripen."

This sherbet may also be frozen in the mechanical refrigerator if it is stirred every 30 minutes during the first one and one-half hours. It will require about four hours in all for the sherbet to freeze stiff enough to serve.

Diced fruits often darken upon standing. Sprinkle the tops with grapefruit or lemon juice.

If the doughnut cutter is dipped in hot fat before cutting out doughnuts, they will not stick.

A Little Saturday Talk

As an addition to our baseball series, we shall have an account today of baseball as played in the frozen North. It tells about games on Herschel island in the Arctic ocean, about 60 miles from the mouth of the Mackenzie river, and was written many years ago by Frederick Funston:

"In a little cove, locked fast in the ice, were several whaling vessels. All had sought shelter in the harbor, to lie up for the winter. All about Herschel island was a jumble of icebergs and solid floe, but where the ships lay, the salt water had frozen as level as a floor.

"A large number of bats and balls had been brought from San Francisco by one of the vessels, and seven baseball clubs were formed into a league, to play for the "Arctic Whaleman's Pennant." One nine was composed of officers, another of seamen, another of firemen, a fourth of cooks and waiters, and so on.

"A diamond was laid out on the frozen harbor, and practice began. Salt water ice is not quite so slippery as that from freshwater, but great care had to be used by the players.

"The first game was played in the short twilight of an Arctic December day, with the mercury 39 degrees below zero. The Roaring Gimlets beat the Pig-Stickers by a score of 62 to 49.

"All winter the games went on, three or four each week. During snowstorms, the air was so full of snow that the outfielders could not be seen from the home-plate. Even after the sun had gone out of sight, and the long Arctic night had begun, games were played in the few hours of twilight at midday, but were usually limited to four innings.

"All the whalemen were dressed in fur costumes, only the face being exposed. On their hands, they wore heavy fur mittens. Often the games were watched by Eskimos. A fat center-fielder from the Orkney islands would stop a hot grounder by lying down in front of it. The Eskimos thought he was the star player of the fleet.

"The Eskimos stood about with eyes and mouths wide open. At first, dozens of them would break over the line and try to hold a runner until a baseman could get the ball. They were taught that their duties were limited to cheering. They borrowed balls and bats, and tried a few games, but seldom got past the first inning, usually winding up in a quarrel. One of their umpires wanted to allow a team to bat after three men were out, in order to even up the score. He was dragged off the diamond by his heels."

Good Books in the Home Can Keep Child Satisfied

BY ANGELO PATRI

There are many fine books for children of all ages. No child need be without good reading. Still we hear teachers and librarians and mothers saying sadly, "If only that child would read. We can't get him to read anything but—" and there follows the name of some juvenile, harmless enough, but of no special weight.

It would be a good idea to study the beloved juvenile and try to find its appeal to the child who reads it to the exclusion of all other reading. You can be certain that there is an appeal to this particular child in this book, something that speaks to his nature and so makes it his book.

One boy would read no book except one about a school boy who did marvelous things on the football field. He read the story until the book fell apart and asked for another copy for his birthday. It was than that his mother thought it would be well to study the book to discover its secret. All she could find in it was the rather improbable tale of the boy's struggle, and triumph on the football team. "I can't see anything in the silly story, but he likes it. It is childish. Why doesn't he grow up into another sort of book?"

Because he had not grown up to the place he wanted to be in and was trying to be in that place as much as possible, through his book. Children, and most grown people, enjoy reading stories that offer them a chance to be the sort of person they inwardly long to be; to do the things, to win the admiration, that the hero expresses so well. When a book expresses the desires and ambitions, prejudices and tastes of its reader that book becomes the reader's chosen way of recreation if not inspiration. It becomes his book. The boy was longing to shine among his schoolmates and had found no way to attract their attention. The football hero was himself, gave him the comfort he needed. When he found a way of shining, he took up another kind of book.

Grown people have definite ideas about good reading for children. A good book is one that sets high standards of behavior, implants a desire for right living, forms good taste in reading. Children are unformed and each of them is in a different phase of development. Each of them will develop in a different way toward a different level of achievement and of living. The ideal book is essential, as a goal, but before we reach it we have to be content with the one that the child can accept and like. That means, very often, the innocuous series. Why not?

To teach a child anything we have to begin where he stands, not where we intend to have him arrive. Let him have the book of his heart always, provided that it is decent. Study what he seems to like, and use that liking for his growth. Don't try to fight it. You can't fight a child into growth. You can feed his growth, stimulate it, encourage it, but you cannot lay violent hands upon it and get anywhere worth while.

Place good books about the house. Talk about them occasionally. Praise them. Then study how to build up the child's need for better books. You may have to begin with ones you dislike, but it is a child's need and a child's taste that is in question. Center on that."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper enclosing a three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Fine Powder Preferable In Summer

BY ELSIE PIERCE

Powder Problems

Mrs. D. A. T.: Summer does present its powder problems and ever so many women, like yourself, wish to know the type of powder to use to avoid flaky patches, particularly when the skin is quite dry or freshly sunburned. Personally, I think that when the skin is freshly sunburned it is well to avoid using powder for a few days at least. If powder is used it should match the skin as closely as possible. And the finer type of powder is preferable to the heavier type. The latter may seem to last longer but I'm certain that you'll find the finer type of powder even if it doesn't "out-cling" the heavier type at least it does give a smoother finish and patches or flaky surfaces are less likely. Try using a cream powder base. Then apply powder generously, pressing firmly but gently with puff. Dust off excess with a fresh bit of cotton or powder brush. I have a bulletin called "Powder and Its Puff" which may be of interest to you. Send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope if you wish it.

Soap Is Fine for Oily Skin

M. L.: "Never wash your face" is just about as old-fashioned a beauty theory as "I never feel clean unless I use soap." Nowadays skin treatment is individualized. Soap is used for the average skin. If the skin is unduly sensitive to soap, allergic or very dry then a cream is indicated. For the oily skin, however, soap is fine, particularly at this season of the year when the oil glands function more actively. There are, in fact, splendid soap substitutes on the market, grains that have the same function as soap without caustic qualities. They are literally deep-pore cleansers and their action on the skin is to cleanse as well as refine. Yes, I have a bulletin describing various types of skin and treatment recommended. It's called "How to Tell Your Skin and What To Do About It." A self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope will bring it to you.

Brittle Hair Ends

P. N.: At the first sign of summer sun the cry begins "What to do about brittle ends." Permanent waves often dry the ends, too. Singeing went out of fashion with hoop skirts. Someone thought of it—"way back when"—as a means of making some extra money. Actually it may be very harmful because dry hair is highly inflammable. The best way to treat dry ends is to apply oil or pomade to them every night and brush. If the ends are so brittle that they begin breaking, have them cut a quarter or half inch above the breaking point, brush and treat hair to oil to strengthen the hair, stimulate the circulation all along the hair shaft.

For the Stray Gray Hair

M. F. P.: You are right. Hair dyeing should be done by an expert only. However, for the stray gray hair you can use a hair pencil or stick this summer and when you return from your extended trip have your hair colored by a reputable expert.

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Exercise" (Booklet 202) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name, and full address to the Bell Library, care this newspaper, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

THE FOLLOWING SITUATIONS NEED NOT PROVE EMBARRASSING

Dear Mrs. Post: I sent a beautiful hand-made dress to a new baby more than several months ago and have not had any word in acknowledgment of it. Frankly I am worried because these people are very wealthy and I may have thoughtlessly chosen a very inappropriate present to send to their child. At the time it did not occur to me that perhaps they might think I believed their baby had real need of a dress, and that I ought to have known very well they could afford to buy dozens of even more beautiful ones than I sent. But I would like to know whether they received the present. Will you tell me what I can do to find out?

Answer: A dress is every bit as suitable a present as a sack or bonnet or any other item, and in no case do I think it possible that their reaction could have been the one you imagine. But it would certainly be in order to write a note saying that, being afraid the dress was lost, you would like them to know that you had sent a present to the baby.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: A neighbor is giving a big afternoon tea. She has sent many invitations and talks to me every day of the arrangements and of the people expected, but she has never actually invited me. I believe she expects me but I don't see how I can take her invitation for granted, nor do I want to stay away and perhaps cause friction between us. If I mention it to her and she had not intended to include me, she might feel embarrassed, and would have no other way but to tell me to come. So I do not know what to do.

Answer: Surely you must have many friends who are going. Couldn't you ask one whom you know very well to ask Mrs. Neighbor whether you are expected? If she says "Of course," then she can tell Mrs. Neighbor that she happens to know you think you are not invited.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a widower and believe that I have found the lady who could creditably take my wife's place in our family, provided of course she is willing. I met her when we were both traveling in the same party abroad. She lives in a distant city where I have several married children. I would like them to meet her and yet I do not intend to visit in that city until fall. Is there some way they could all meet before it is possible for me to be present? Because I want to know that my intentions are pleasing to all!

Answer: I think probably the best arrangement would be to write to your children and tell them that you have met some one whom you are inclined to care for very much. Tell them that you have asked her to invite them to go to see her, and therefore when she telephones or writes them that you particularly want them to make an effort to meet her. Meanwhile, of course, write to her and tell her that the children would like to meet her and ask her if she will write and name a day and hour when it will be convenient.

Dix Finds it Safest to Mary Person in Own Class

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a physician of 42 and find that my judgment is being warped and that vertigo is slowly but surely tampering with the linchpin in my head. The reason is a beautiful and intelligent young lady twenty years younger than myself. We have both been divorced. I don't know why she left her husband. My wife and I parted over a quarrel about members of her family not paying back some money I had loaned them at great sacrifice. My wife is a person of high moral character, a good disposition and easy to get along with. She has written to me lately wanting to make up and for us to remarry, but I am in love with this girl. Or think I am. Is it possible that girl that much younger than I am can really love me? Would I stay in love with her, or is this just a last flare-up of youth? I would not think of marrying a woman twenty years older than I. Why should a girl marry a man that much older than herself? What do you think of the chances of happiness as between the two marriages?

R. E. A.

DOROTHY DIX

Answer:

It is always safest to marry in your own age class. This goes for both men and women, because after the glory and the circling wings of romance have departed there is a long, long trail that a husband and wife must travel together. It is a pretty dull and desolate one unless they have the same background, the same tastes and habits and like to do the same things.

They can't do that if one is young and the other is old. There is bound to be sacrifice on one side or the other if one wants to stay put by the fire and the other wants to step out to dance; if one, in the exuberance of youth, wants to be forever rushing about from place to place and the other is tired and wants to rest; if one wants to sing and yell and the other asks nothing so much as quiet; if one is eager and curious to go places and see things and the other is bored to death at the show he has seen a thousand times; if one likes to hark back to delightful memories of old plays, famous old actors, books and political events that were a sensation twenty years ago and of whom the other never even heard.

Go into any home where there is an old husband and a young wife and note how little they have to say to each other; how bored they are with each other; how thick with silence the atmosphere is. Go to any night club and watch the old husbands of young wives sitting alone at their tables while the girl wives dance with boys as young and nimble as they are and who know all the new steps. And you don't know which you are sorrier for—the old husband whose only function is to pay the check, or the young wife who always feels that her husband is a stranger to her, and that she is only with friends when she is with boys of her own age with whom she can play.

The difference in age was never so important as it is now because in the last twenty years there has been such an upheaval in manners and points of view that it has separated the old from the young by a chasm that not even love can bridge. Many things that the young of today do, with no thought of impropriety, would have been scandals twenty years ago. A cocktail-drinking, cigarette-smoking, half-dressed girl would have been arrested and put in jail before she had got three blocks from home in those days. Now she merely represents the fashion. Other times, other manners. But a husband of the old school and a modern girl wife would have plenty to quarrel over.

Youth seldom falls in love with age, but age is always allured by youth. Therein lies the danger of a man marrying a girl twenty years younger than he is. There is always a chance that what she thought was love was a passing fancy, her vanity being flattered at her power to charm an older man.

Nor can a man of 42 depend upon the stability of his own love. That, too, may pass and he may get as tired of entertaining a young girl as he would of playing with a child and want somebody nearer his own age for a companion.

So, on the whole, I should say that as between this young girl and your former wife the older woman is the better bet.

DOROTHY DIX.

Old Gardener Says:

By E. I. Farrington

This is the season when aphids, or plant lice as they are commonly called, are likely to be particularly prevalent in both the flower and the vegetable garden. They are small, soft-bodied insects which suck the sap from plants. They cause the leaves to wilt and curl, blossom buds to blast and eventually kill the entire plant if they are not controlled. The standard control from many years has been nicotine sulphate. It should be used at the rate of one and one-quarter teaspoonfuls in one gallon of water in which two-thirds of an ounce of soap has been dissolved. The newer rotenone and pyrethrum sprays and dusts have also proved effective in controlling aphids. The manufacturers directions should be carefully followed.

My Neighbor Says—

Corn cut from cob may be salted in jars and put away for the Winter. Over every four-inch layer of corn shake ½-inch of cooking salt. Set away in cool, dark place.

Dorothy Perkins rose bushes can be multiplied rapidly by laying down the canes which are near the ground and covering them with a little soil. Roots will form and at the end of a year the new plants may be separated from the parent. This plan may also be followed with other free-growing kinds, but with most varieties it is better to make cuttings. The lovely Dr. Van Fleet can be increased very easily this way, and so can Silver Moon and several others of this type.

Pastry made with too much water is tough and hard. Use only enough water to hold ingredients together, mix quickly, roll and handle as little as possible.

Musty fruit jars may be cleaned by filling with one cup of vinegar and one cup of warm soapy water, stand one hour and then rinse well with hot water.

To remove the cloudiness which comes over highly polished furniture wash it with a sponge and tepid water and rub it dry with a wet chamois wrung out of cold water. A dry chamois streaks the surface and does not remove the blur.

If sugar is added to apple sauce just before it is removed from the stove much less sugar will be required to sweeten it.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—James Hogan, who ran the directorial gamut from hoss op'ry to sea epic in three pictures, is doing "Ebb Tide" in color. Paramount heralds it as the first sea picture in the rainbow medium, which it doubtless is if you forget Douglas Fairbanks' "The Black Pirate."

Hogan, an old-timer, made his comback as a director on a western, and first thing any of us knew he was handed a big "A" picture. He knows it's an "A" because in the champagne-wasting scenes it's real champagne that's wasted. (Stockholders note: But just a few bottles, essential for dramatic and color reasons.)

"There aren't any hosses in this one," he said, "but I can handle it. Formula's the same. I'll just make the sea run faster."

* * *

"Ebb Tide" will mark the Hollywood debut of a real actor, Oscar Homolka by name, who hitherto has appeared in British films. I watched Hogan direct him and Barry Fitzgerald, another real actor, in a dramatic scene. They're on the ship loaded with champagne, cases and cases of it. Fitzgerald, tippling pleasantly, has killed half a bottle when Homolka, playing a guy who knows drink is his master, stops the fun, seizes the bottle, puts Barry to work. Then, on Homolka's face, a battle rages. Some of the most superb pantomime these eyes have witnessed.

"I'll buy it," Hogan called, ending the scene. And Homolka, an instant before a man torn by emotion, became a pleasant, unassuming fellow who looks out under bushy eyebrows and smiles.

He is not yet, I'm afraid, a typical Hollywood star. When he spilled champagne on his hands, in a previous take, he lost no time waiting for four prop men to rush with towels. He pulled out his handkerchief and used it himself.

* * *

Benny Baker reports he wandered into a "horse room" on the boulevard and heard the following conversation from three actors betting quarters:

First: "If I don't win this time I don't know what's going to happen. I'm broke."

Second: "What're you kicking about? If I don't get a day's work tomorrow I won't have eaten in five!"

Third: "That's nothing. All I worry about is money. I go to sleep with it and I wake up with it—worrying."

That's all. Not funny. Just a Hollywood theme song, or variations on a single tune.

SNAKES GET NEW DEAL

Weatherford, Okla. —(P)— J. M. Kroeker, farmer who lives near here, has a snake paradise.

Kroeker said the snakes repay him for his friendliness by eating crop destroying insects.

Kipling's Famed Story Is Coming

'Captains Courageous' Will Be Shown at Rio Theater

The power of Rudyard Kipling's saga of the sea, "Captains Courageosu," attains its greatest force in the dramatic picture which comes to the Rio Theater Friday.

The characters are portrayed with rare artistry and MGM has omitted no detail that would bring into visual and audible play the genius of the master writer.

They bought a Gloucester schooner and sailed her down through the Canal to the Pacific, there to make some of the gorgeous scenes. Others were shot along the Atlantic seaboard from Newfoundland south to the West Indies. Nothing was overlooked.

Freddie Bartholomew, as the boy who is swept from the deck of a liner to be rescued by the Gloucester crew of a fishing schooner performs his first American role and unquestionably it is equal, if not superior, to anything he has ever done in his distinguished young career.

Spencer Tracy scores as Manuel, the Portuguese fisherman, as do Lionel Barrymore as the picturesque Captain Disko, skipper of the schooner, "We're Here," and Melvyn Douglas as Freddie's father.

In the large supporting cast distinguished work is contributed by Charley Grapewin, Mickey Rooney, Jack Larue, John Carradine, and numerous others, as well as the actual crew of the Gloucester schooner which was sailed to the Pacific coast for the picture.

Just as Kipling knew and respected the sea, so has the picture caught and reflected its majestic moods and the beauty of calm and storm, sunlight and fog. The players, individually and collectively, have grasped their respective parts with a remarkable depth of understanding.

Electric Wire Workers Featured in This Film

A class of American workers whose trade has never before been touched by the movies—those adventurous and hardy lads who string electrical power wires across the remote waste places—are depicted for your entertainment in the picture "Slim," which is scheduled to play at the Appleton Theatre next week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The popular Henry Fonda carries the title role of "Slim", a young farm lad, who, fascinated by the work of a wire-gang crossing his father's land, becomes one of them, with the aid of "Red," a jovial and gallant wire-stringer who is portrayed by that perpetual favorite, Pat O'Brian. The girl in the picture is none other than the lovely Margaret Lindsay. Stuart Erwin, one of the pals of the two boys, will win plenty of laughs. The excellent supporting players are Jane Wyman and Craig Reynolds.

The authenticity of the picture as a story of linemen's activities is vouched for by the producers, who used in it several crews of real experts in that line who were loaned by the contractors that were building the transmission wires connecting the famed Boulder Dam and the city of Los Angeles.

Two shootings, one poisoning and several exciting unsuccessful attempts at mayhem, make "Night of Mystery," which will be the second feature on this program, the fastest moving Philo Vance picture yet screened.

Twin Bill Will Play At Rio Theater 2 Days

"Michael O'Halloran," featured on the twin hit program at the Rio theater Wednesday and Thursday is a production worthy of the Gene Stratton-Porter original story.

Readers of the delightful novel will recall that it deals with the power of a small boy to regenerate his foster parents and bring happiness and contentment to everyone whom his life touches.

Jackie Moran takes the part of the orphan waif, and Charlene Wyatt effectively portrays his little invalid sister. These two youngsters sprang into sudden prominence as the juvenile team in "Valiant Is The World for Carrie."

Wynne Gibson, a long time favorite, is cast as the thoughtless, giddy mother who thinks only of her own pleasure until her love is put to the test. Sidney Blackmer is her husband.

An ingenuous device included in the production is a brief Mickey Mouse sequence, which will appeal to children and grown-ups alike.

The romantic comedy hit of the season, "Sing and Be Happy," is the second half of the program, with five grand song hits and the screen's new song-and-romance team.

Trevor and Whalen Are Starred Together

Hilarity and adventure run riot on the highways in "Time Out for Romance," the thrillingly amusing Twentieth Century-Fox production at the Elite theatre on Monday and Tuesday, bargain days, with Claire Trevor and Michael Whalen hitting new highs in romantic comedy as a run-away bride and a highway Romeo involved with a cross-country auto caravan.

Picturing the carload of heart-trouble that a driver acquires when he picks up a hitch-hiking heiress, "Time Out for Romance" also features Joan Davis, Douglas Fowley and Bennie Bartlett, in a film every speeding second of which is crammed with hilarious, exciting adventure.

GROUP TO MEET

The committee for the 5-year reunion of the class of 1932 of Appleton High school will meet at 7:30 Monday evening at the home of Miss Mary Reineck, 215 N. Oneida street.

Over 300 Species of May-Flies are Listed

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Clara Hussong

About this time each year those of us who live near large bodies of fresh water witness the annual appearance of great swarms of the fragile-bodied, long-tailed insects known in this vicinity as "Green Bay flies." From the lakes and bays where they spent their larval life they fly up in dense clouds and visit near-by towns where they swirl around street lights, lighted store windows or dash themselves against automobile headlights and windshields.

These are May-flies, although in various localities they are known by other names. Bay-flies, shad-flies, lake-flies and day-flies are other names by which they are known. "Day-fly" refers to their brief life, lasting from a few hours to three or four days, sometimes longer.

Bodies Transparent

More than 300 species of May-flies are known, 85 of them occurring in temperate North America. The one which we are most familiar with is a brownish one, having large, delicate fore-wings and much smaller hind wings. At the end of the abdomen is attached a pair of long slender tails. May-flies are entirely harmless. As they take in no food during their brief adult existence, they are not even furnished with a mouth.

Most of us dislike them because of the mess they make when their dancing hours are over and because of the fishy smell emanating from their dead bodies. Their fragile bodies are so transparent that their hearts can be seen beating within them.

The entire life of a May-fly lasts from one to three years, although only a small part of it is passed in the adult winged stage. The parents usually mate while dancing over bodies of fresh water. The mating dance of some species is said to be a beautiful sight: "Male and female, flying together rhythmically, rise and fall, soaring aloft to various heights and falling ecstatically with wings outspread," Wellhouse says in "How Insects Live."

Soon after mating the females leave the dance in order to deposit their eggs. In some species the females dip into the water in order to dislocate the eggs from the ovipositor. In others she folds her wings and, surrounded by an air bubble, she creeps under water to lay them on the bed or on a stone. Sometimes the eggs are dropped directly in the water but in every case they gradually drop to the bottom.

Molt Many Times

In about a month the larvae, known as nymphs or naiads, hatch from the eggs. These tiny creatures swim about in the water and feed on various seaweeds and other aquatic vegetation. They molt many times, the first molt occurring when they are only a few hours old. Each time they molt they emerge as a larger nymph. The larvae stage lasts from one to three years, depending on the species of May-fly. In that time the nymph may have molted more than twenty times.

When they have reached their full growth they are ready to emerge as a winged insect. They swim to the surface of the water and in a short time the skin along their backs split and the adult May-fly emerges. Unlike butterflies and moths, the adult insect is able to fly immediately. It leaves the water and finds a twig or other support on which to rest and to wait for its final molt.

No other insect molts after it has once reached the winged stage. A group of us had the good fortune to watch the final molting of hundreds of May-flies, not the large common form but a tiny beautiful species. Last Sunday evening while the members of the Green Bay Bird club were nearing the west bay shore on their return from the field trip at Long Tail point we noticed a cloud of tiny insects flying about us and settling on every available surface. Hats, coats and other clothing of the members were covered with them and in the growing darkness they looked like little snow-flakes. Upon close inspection they were found to be pale blue or lavender in color, about half an inch long and scarcely as broad through the wings.

Here for Short Time

Each insect was equipped with three slender tails. As we watched them through a miscroscope we saw them wiggle their bodies and fly off with a new set of tails but leaving the old set attached to the shell of their coats right on the surface where they had first alighted. I was as mystified as the rest. In looking through half a dozen insect books I came across the statement describing the final molt of the May-fly and so I am forced to accept this delicately tinted creature as a relative of the despised "Green Bay fly."

At various times residents of lake and river towns have asked the department of agriculture to help rid the waters of these insects. Both in their winged and larvae form May-flies are relished by some of our most desirable fish, so it seems best to leave them undisturbed. In a few weeks their brief existence will be over, except for a few who for some reason happen to emerge later then the rest of the brood.

MARX BROTHERS 'AT THE RACES'

The Marx Brothers, Groucho, Harpo, and Chico, are causing considerable commotion at the Rio where their latest picture, "A Day at the Races" is being shown through Tuesday. They're nuts over nags now, and it's a riot of fun! Add gorgeous girls galore, grand hit songs, dazzling spectacle, and you see why it's way out in front in the Entertainment Derby.

The second feature attraction on the same program is "Love in a Bungalow," featuring Nan Grey and Kent Taylor, two new stars who are rapidly leaping to stardom.

Joe Brown Stars In Upson Story

Comedian Never Was Funnier Than in Picture, 'Earthworm Tractors'

Never has Joe E. Brown been funnier personally than in his First National comedy, "Earthworm Tractors" which is showing today and Sunday at the Elite Theater. Nor has he ever had a more hilarious vehicle in which to display his comic antics than in this picture which is taken from the series of comedy stories written for the Saturday Evening Post by William Hazlett Upson.

Probably no other comedian of stage or screen could have come so close to being the personification of Alexander Botts, natural born super-salesman, in his own mind, whose luck is so phenomenal that even his consistent and collossal blunders turn out to his advantage.

Joe E. makes Alexander Botts, one of the most comical heroes of fiction, live and breathe on the screen as Joe has lost none of his vim and pep as the greatest fun maker of the time.

Joe E.'s two leading women merit special comment. They are June Travis and Carol Hughes, both of the brunette beauty type.

FILM STARRING HARLOW COMING TO ELITE

Jean Harlow comes to the screen of the Elite Theater for 3 days starting next Wednesday in a picture that might well be listed as her 'farewell appearance.' It is "PERSONAL PROPERTY" in which she is co-starred with Robert Taylor. This is the last picture that Miss Harlow made for the M-G-M studios. It is based on the well known stage success "Man In Possession."

Duffy Assumes Role Of Research Expert

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Just to show that a senator's duties are not restricted to silver-tongued oratory and august appearances on the senate floor, Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac has been asked to assume the role of historical research expert.

Louis C. Butler, Lake Mills, asked him to look up the military record of one, Joel Butler, Windsor, Vt. The latter served in the Revolution under Benedict Arnold.

And that's about all the information the senator has with which to work.

Nothing daunted, the Wisconsin senator has put the War department to work on the job, and then he will relay their information to Mr. Butler.

Highway Commission to Consider Flood Control

The state highway commission will meet at the Elwood hotel in New London at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning to consider flood water courses. Complaints that Highway 54 holds up spring flood waters of the Wolf and Embarrass rivers' overflow will be heard by the commissioners and suggestions to relieve the condition will be received. Members of the Outagamie County Highway committee Frank R. Appleton, highway commission, will attend the meeting.

Film Features American Family

'Make Way for Tomorrow' Is Highly Entertaining Story

A highly entertaining story of the great American family in action will come to the Appleton Theater next week Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday in "Make Way For Tomorrow." "Make Way For Tomorrow" is the story of three generations of a typical American family who are forced to live under the same roof. The squabbles, bickerings, comedy and problems which may be expected to arise from such an arrangement are present in full measure, making the picture one of the "homiest" and most human stories to reach the screen in a long time. The youngest generation is represented by Barbara Read, who is assailed by all the problems of a modern beautiful girl in her 'teens, but is unable to confide in her mother, Fay Bainter, who is a bridge fiend, or her grandmother, Beulah Bondi, who is too far removed from her generation. There's a whole set of in-laws, comprising Thomas Mitchell, Porter Hall, Minna Gombell and Ray Mayer who complicate matters and bring the story to a powerful climax when the three generations they represent finally are forced to work out their destinies.

"The Hit Parade" will be the second feature on this program starring Frances Langford, Phil Ragan, Orchestra leaders, Eddie Duchin, Karl Hoff and Duke Ellington. The plot weaves itself engagingly about the featured songs, dances and comedy sketches that make up the production. Langford, as the unknown singer, is clavated to stardom by Press Agent Regan. The feminine heavy, played convincingly by Louise Henry, threatens to ruin her reputation, and just about succeeds, but Regan saves the day in an unusual and gripping denouement.

Commission to Hear Compensation Cases

Five cases under the workmen's compensation act will be heard by the Wisconsin Industrial commission next Wednesday at the city hall. They are Dominick Sarnowski versus John F. Danke, Anton Rieth versus Thilmany Pulp and Paper company, Lloyd Meredith versus R. F. Schwebs, Arthur A. Durdell versus Prudential Insurance company and Rolland F. Yonts, deceased, versus Wisconsin Bridge and Iron company.

NEENAH — The fourteenth annual Fox Valley Tennis tournament, showing almost every outstanding tennis amateur in the country, will open at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Doty Tennis club courts. Pairings are to be made Sunday night.

Although Robert L. Riggs, winner of the national clay courts championship and rated No. 4 player in the nation, is favored to win, he will run into plenty of opposition.

Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., ranked No. 10 player in the country and defending champion of the Fox tourney, is considered one of the finest volleyers in the country. Hendrix gave Riggs a tough battle this season in the national when he forced Riggs to five sets to win after taking the first two heats.

Martin Buxby, Miami, Fla., now in the semi-finals of the Wisconsin open tennis tourney, has turned in a win over Hendrix this season and will be here Monday to make his bid for the championship. Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore., is another outstanding netter who will appear. Cooke defeated Bitsy Grant in the finals of the Hot Springs tourney recently and has also won over Wayne Sabin and Gilbert Hall.

Hard-hitting Walter Senior, San Francisco, is ranked No. 12 player in the country and Frank Kovach, who stands 6 feet 3 inches, is an outstanding Pacific coast player. A Russian prince, Georges Scherbatoff, also has entered.

Riggs, ranked No. 4 in the nation, is a colorful racquet wielder, and considers the local tourney one of the finest in the country and is anxious to win the title.

Other well known players entered are: Milton "Ike" Ruehl, Milwaukee, No. 1 in Wisconsin; Joe Lucia, Rice institute, Texas; Hall and Neemeyer, U. S. C.; Landon Buchanan, Roanoke, Va.; Don Leavens, No. 2 in Wisconsin, former national boy champion; Jean McCauliff, Yonkers, N. Gehrig and Medwick Continue to Set Batting Pace in the Majors

NEW YORK — (P)— Big league batters, with their eyes on a prospective bid to the coming all-star game, turned on the heat this week, but although several climbed way up in the standings, none was able to come close to Ducky Medwick or Lou Gehrig.

Medwick, continuing one of the hottest batting paces in years, collected 13 hits in 30 chances to boost his average three points, thereby showing a .416 season mark after two months of play.

Gehrig, the Yankee clouter, hit for just under .400 for the week ended with yesterday's games and remained far out in front in the American league, with a .392 mark.

Notable sluggers of the week were Charley Gehringer, Detroit's classy second-sacker, with 12 hits in 27 chances, boosting himself from eighth to third place in the American league with a .356 mark; Paul Waner, Pittsburgh's "Big Poison," with 14-for-29 for the week, climbing from eighth to second in the National league with .364. Jonathan Stone, Washington, who shot into the junior circuit top ten and all the way up to sixth place with .350, and the veteran Pinky Whitney, Phillies third sacker, who climbed into the National league select set with .347.

Rehfeldt got three hits in four tries. One was a homer in the ninth with two mates on base and would have won the game had not one of the boys neglected to touch second base. He also hit a triple and a double. Jahnke and Krause, also of the Mt. Olive team, hit homers. Krause's blow deciding the game in the tenth frame.

Schinke, Mt. Olive hurler, turned in his fifth straight victory. He is undefeated in league play. Schinke also hit a triple.

See Slight Increase In Migratory Wildfowl

Washington—(P)—The bureau of biological survey predicts a slight increase in migratory wildfowl this fall over last.

It has been announced that legislation will be introduced in the present congress to earmark revenue now received from excise taxes on sporting arms and ammunition for distribution to states for wildlife restoration projects.

This fund, amounting to approximately $3,00,000, would be allotted to the states, which would be required to match funds on a 75-25 per cent basis, the states putting up 25 per cent.

Chaff 'n ChatteR

By Gordon R. McIntyre

NORTHERN State league baseball begins a new era, or something, with tomorrow afternoon's game now that Oshkosh is out of the league and there are six teams left and each will be in action at least once a week.

The Oshkosh situation was a difficult one and it's a good thing it has been settled rather amicably. The league knew that seven teams made for a poor situation with one team idle each week. But the loop couldn't ask Oshkosh to quit before the race started because it was as strong and its setup as good as several other clubs. When the Indians won a few games its setup was even better.

But as the season went along Oshkosh failed to keep up the pace, it had no park and some of the players became dissatisfied. Then several got an idea that they might join other league teams if Oshkosh failed to put a team on the field and the league kicked the club out.

As a result the group made things more than unpleasant for Manager Ken Kriesel and finally came the Kimberly game when they failed to appear in uniforms after freely admitting their hopes. But they were to suffer a surprise for when the league heard of their comments and had the remarks substantiated it barred the players who didn't report for the Kimberly game from participation in the loop the remainder of the season. And that was the best thing that ever happened to the Northern State league.

The players knew the Oshkosh setup before they signed with the club and they knew there would be hard sledding. For them to let the club down cold was entirely uncalled for and if other teams had picked them up who knows but what they, too, might have been left holding the bag some Sunday afternoon.

There still is a bad situation existing in the circuit but perhaps nothing will come of it this year. We have reference to the fact that several of the teams are spending much more than they have been taking in at the gate; in other words the smaller towns with limited material which necessitates going outside after players, and with mighty small populations to draw from, are spending more than they can possibly earn.

But that's been the case for years and teams are built up and smacked down and leagues built up and likewise smacked down.

So what?

* * *

Just in case you haven't noticed it, Dan Cupid is all but wrecking a couple baseball teams in the Northern State league in the next few days. Little Chute will be hardest hit when Howie Ellis, second baseman, and Bill Peotter, first sacker, take the July 4 weekend off for their honeymoons. And over at Kimberly Art "Lefty" Behr, will be missing too, perhaps, for he also is planning to be married.

The boys down at Little Chute are telling one on Bill Peotter. It seems that the squad held a stag party for Bill and Howie Thursday evening in the village hall. It was hot and in view of the fact that the crowd was all men some doffed shirts and Bill and Beany Bongers removed trousers and lolled in ease and contentment.

Things were going nicely when suddenly there was a knock at the door and who should enter but one of the young ladies bringing over the lunches. Bill and Beany both looked for a hole to crawl into and then found refuge in a corner where Bob Lamers and a couple other big fellows all but hid them from view.

Members of Appleton High school track and field team who won points in the Valley conference meet which the Terrors won, and including the boys who gave the Terrors a first in the state Class A meet at Madison, will be guests of Appleton Lion's club Monday noon at luncheon at the Conway hotel and will be presented with gold track shoes, gifts of the club.

The state title was the first ever won by an Appleton squad and the second going to a Valley conference school. The Valley title was the second in as many years for the Terrors.

Roger Norder, Bear Creek boxer who has frequently appeared on amateur cards here, had an unusual initiation into navy life when the U. S. S. Tennessee, on which he is an apprentice seaman, ran aground off Alameda, near San Francisco harbor, and was stuck hard and fast for 40 hours. The crew was in no danger, but could not turn in until the vessel was liberated, he writes.

The experience of a couple of pro fighters now in Seattle has rather discouraged him with the fight game, he admits. "Doc" Snell, who fought three time for the worlds' championship, is a bartender there, and Dave Maier, a promising 175-pounder who fought for the title once, and boxed out of Milwaukee for about a year, is a longshoreman.

Roger writes interestingly of life in the fleet, and the places he has seen—Alcatraz, and the huge new bridges, the Barbary coast and Chinatown—although he admits that the oriental "atmosphere," especially that of half-cleaned unrefrigerated poultry and rabbits, "really gets you down."

SUNDAY'S GAMES

Manitowoc at Kimberly (night.)

Two Rivers at Little Chute.

Kaukauna at Green Bay (night).

LITTLE CHUTE and Kimberly baseball teams will be the home clubs in this section of the Northern State league Sunday with the Chuters playing an afternoon contest with Two Rivers and the Papermakers battling Manitowoc in a night game. Kaukauna hits the highways Sunday to show at Green Bay in a night contest.

The Chuters will attempt to get back into the midst of things when they take the field against Two Rivers. Leaders in the race for several weeks, the Hollanders fell into the also ran column a week or so ago but hope to stage a comeback. In their most recent meeting, the Chuters downed the Centennials easily as Dick Weisgerber allowed only two hits. Since that time, however, the Smogoleski boys have rejoined the Rivers club and its winning streak has been attributed to their war clubs.

Several shifts may be made in the Little Chute battle front as result of the injury to Orville Bongers. He suffered two fractured fingers sliding and will be out five weeks. Ellis may be moved to short and L. Van Dyke to second or Peotter to short and Van Dyke to first base.

Dick Weisgeber has been nominated for duty on the mound, Jack Lamers behind the plate, Verstegen at third and Bob Lamers, Wildenberg, Gullickson or Lucassen in the outfield.

Two Rivers probably will show both its hurlers, Harlan Bohne, youthful right hander, and the veteran Lefty Fortin. Pupeter is the catcher and one of the team's best hitters. Other members of the club well-known in Little Chute are the Smogoleske brothers, Eddie Raab and Mike Muldowney. The latter two once played with Green Bay.

Kimberly Stronger

The night contest at Kimberly will show the Papermakers with their new battle front, a combination that smacks of class. It made its debut last Thursday night against Seymour and although it must be admitted Seymour was licked by the lights, the Papermaker bats laid down a terrific barrage of hits.

The principal changes in the lineup show Baldy Hauk at second base and Hal Schroeder, of the University of Wisconsin, at short. Swen Bowman still is at first and Horn has been moved to third. The outfield will show Cashman in left, Zinth in center and U. Wildenberg in right, a rather tough combination.

Al LaDuke is slated to take the mound with Lefty Behr in reserve. S. Wildenberg will perform behind the log. The latter was the bat star in Thursday night's victory with four hits in four tries.

Manitowoc will show the same lineup that has appeared in the valley in recent games. Lefty Schoepke will hurl, Gray will catch. Zigmund will show at first, McCambridge at second, hard-hitting Buck Kraus at short and Rosinsky at third. In the garden there will be Borths, Vnuk and Wilda.

Kaws To Green Bay

Kaukauna will invade Green Bay prepared for one of the toughest games of the seasons. The Boys have started to take things seriously and from now on they'll be one of the best clubs in the circuit. Carvenaugh will pitch for Kaukauna and the lineup will be the same as in other games except that Radder will start in the outfield. The Bays will toss Johnny Rowe.

Washington Park to Hold Final Program

Chicago—(P)—Tiger, another one of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' big band of crack two-year olds, was the choice today to collect the winner's end of a $38,750 purse in the first running of the futurity, feature of Washington Park's farewell to racing for 1937.

Tiger, speedy son of Bulldog and Mountain Ridge, named as the entry of Mrs. Mars' Milky Way Farm stable, figured to go to the post as the six furlong test, first futurity to be run in America this year, favored at 7 to 5.

The second choice was the entry of Bourbon King and Menow, from the Kentucky stable of Hal Price Headley. Bourbon King rated as Tiger's toughest foe, and was expected to face the barrier at 2 to 1.

Cunningham has traveled 450,000 miles to run in track meets and his jaunts have carried him to Europe twice, to the Orient and to Canada many time

Cincinnati Reds Beat Boston and Take 6th Place

St. Louis Mauls Giants and Cubs Wallops Brooklyn

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ONE side, folks, here come the Cincinnati Reds.

After spending slightly over eight weeks getting his Rhinelanders out of the National league cellar, just when everyone thought they'd taken a lease on the place, Charley Dressen popped up today with the heartening news that the Reds have only started climbing.

From somewhere, they've come up suddenly with the ways and means of winning ball games, although their nine innings pitchers are still few and far between, and in their current home stay have climbed from the bottom of the pack to sixth place.

Their record of six wins and two setbacks give the Reds their first better-than-.500 home stand of the season, and has shown some of the stuff that a lot of the "experts", who were chanting their praises in spring training, insisted they had.

Although the Cincinnati sluggers aren't causing any immediate worry for the Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals, who belted over the Dodgers and Giants, respectively, to remain in the one-two spots, Dressen figures it won't be long now.

The sudden returned to form of Paul Derringer, who pitched a three-hitter against the Giants last week, is one of the big factors Dressen believes has favored the Reds, and the classy comeback of Chick Hafey is another.

Beat Boston, 6-2

Hafey and another comebacker, the newly-acquired pitching veteran Walter Brown, played a large part in the Reds' 6-2 win over the Boston Bees yesterday, which gave them a one-game toehold on sixth place, and left them only two games away from fifth.

The big fireworks in the National league, however, were furnished in St. Louis and Chicago. The Cardinals, entertaining the Giants, gave Mr. Slick Castleman a 14-hit going over and finished on top 9-4, to drop the New Yorkers two full games away from second place. The Cub retained their one-game league lead by walloping the Dodgers 11-2 on Augie Galan's two homers and Tex Carleton's five-hit flinging.

Opening their "croocial" series with the Tigers, the Yankees handed Tommy Bridges and the Detroiters an 8-1 setback, as Bill Dickey's revived power-hitting clouted his sixth homer in five days. The win left the Yanks four games in front in the American league and dropped the Tigers into a second-place tie with the Chicago White Sox, who outlasted the Senators and Wes Ferrell for a 7-6 decision.

Boston's Red Sox made it three straight by topping the Browns 4-2 as Buck Newsom pitched a four-hitter. The Phillies pounded the Pirates 10-5. The Indians and Athletics were not scheduled.

Toledo Mud Hens Regain Top Rung

Win Two from Saints; Milwaukee Defeated by Louisville

Chicago—(P)—Toledo's Mud Hens were back on top again today in their stirring struggle with the Minneapolis Millers for first place in the American asociation.

Two neat pitching performances, the first by Dizzy Trout and the other by Alta Cohen, helped Fred Haney's Toledo club to victories over St. Paul in both games of a double-header last night at Toledo, while the Millers were losing the opening game of a series at Columbus, 5 to 3. The combination of events boosted Toledo back into the lead with a half-game margin.

Trout held the Saints to three hits in the first game while his mates clouted Johnny Welch for 14 and an 8 to 3 victory. In the second game, limited to seven innings by agreement, Cohen kept six hits pretty well apart while the Hens bunched the same number off Vernon (Whitey) Wilshere for a 5 to 3 decision.

Brilliant relief hurling by Morton Cooper, who replaced Max Lanier in the third inning, gave the Red Birds their victory over Minneapolis.

Louisville went into a tie for fifth place with Milwaukee by defeating the Brewers, 8 to 6, in another night game. The Colonels made only nine hits off Al Milnar and Ralph Winegarner, to 13 by the Brewers off Jim Peterson and Shaffer, but benefited by five errors.

Wet ground caused postponement of a night doubleheader between Kansas City and Indianapolis at Indianapolis.

Harvard Crew Wins Over Yale

Varsity Boat Gives Crimson Thrill As it Sets New Record

New London, Conn. —(P)— Harvard's joyful Johnnies kept repeating their songs of victory today as they anticipated what promises to be the most glorious era of their long rowing history under Tom Bolles, their now-tested head coach, and captain-elect John F. (Spike) Chace, whom they hail as the greatest stroke to man one of their Crimson-tipped blades.

The stalwart Chace crowded even the famed Jerry (Killer) Casedy from the hearts and minds of Harvard's rowing-minded hosts last night, when, for the second consecutive year, he set a pace that Ed Leader's Yale sweepers could not match up the four-mile stretch of Thames river from the railroad bridge to Bartlett's Cove.

He and his sturdy mates were called upon to out-row traditional rivals of much greater skill and stamina in the feature event of this year's colorful river pageant and they responded with such vim that they set a new upstream record of 20 minutes, 2 seconds while subjecting the Yale varsity sweepers to their first setback of the season.

This triumph did much to ease the pain of the three previous defeats Harvard suffered during the day. The Yale crews won both the freshman and junior varsity races in the morning. Then Larry Kelley concluded his intercollegiate career by leading his teammates to a 13-3 triumph in the third and deciding baseball game.

Rotten Government Is a Joke; Must Explode Soon

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Pegler

Chicago—Rotten government has been a joke in Chicago and in Illinois at large throughout the experience of all men now living in the state, but the day cannot be far off when the situation must explode, for no government can go on this way forever. In fact, it is a marvel that the skeleton of government has held together this long against the pressure of graft, corruption, waste and unbelievable incompetence and cynicism in the part of thieving ignorant public officials and small-time parasites.

The man does not live who can remember when Chicago had a decent city administration, although there have been a couple of nominally respectable mayors and a few ineffective political reformers in minor positions. These invariably have been hooted out of office as sissies, and the respectable citizens have been as much to blame as the gang politicians and the colonized foreign vote.

If there is any decent civic spirit in Chicago, it has never been organized, and politically, it has never had any more power than the freckle-faced vote or the knock-kneed vote.

It may be added that the newspapers, on the whole, have been as venal as the politicians, and that the people have been kidded into false enthusiasms for dirty candidates so often that nowadays every motive of the newspapers falls under suspicion. It may be added, further, that labor has been one of the most murderous and greedy rackets in a thoroughly corrupt city and is no better qualified to clean up the mess and provide decent government than any other aggregation of crooks.

Chicago Cops Have Bad Examples

This is the background and a capsule summary of the events leading up to the slaughter of the steel workers in South Chicago on Memorial day. It will be made out that the pistol fire and clubbing were unprovoked, but witnesses for the defense will testify that many of the pickets carried lengths of iron pipe, bolts, clubs and bricks and that the point-blank shooting did not break out until the "peaceful" marchers had let fly a rain of missiles hardly calculated to improve the health of the policemen.

Chicago cops are tough cops, and the force has no nice appreciation of civil rights. They get little professional training, and they have always had an example of graft, pull, political immunity and irresponsibility from the dominant spirits of the town. This does not justifiy, but it does explain to some extent, the personal ferocity of their reprisal when they again were attacked by a mob which had sent some of their comrades to the hospital in a previous riot supressed by less deadly weapons.

The have about the same discipline and respect for law that the citizens have, and the citizens' attitude toward law and government is plainly indicated by the character of the men whom they habitually tolerate in public office

So the slaughter of the "peaceful" pickets was strictly in the Chicago mood and may be charged back to decades of indifference and corruption. In this case, the cops got out of temper and behaved just as John L. Lewis' miners did at Herrin, 15 years ago, though with not quite the same savagery.

To Prosecute Would Do No Good

To prosecute a few cops for murder in this case would do no good.

In the first place, in the condition of local sentiment, convictions would be no more likely than in the Herrin massacre, where Mr. Lewis' peaceful pickets all went free.

And, anyway, the case calls for a complete reform of the system which produced that type of cop. It calls for more than a mere chance of administration, for one administration is as rotten as another in Chicago, and a change of party or faction never means anything but a transfer of the grafting franchise.

What Chicago must have is a great public prosecutor and crusader, but not a demagog, who can rouse the whole town to an appreciation of the corruption and free-style robbery which most members of the present population have always accepted as the normal thing in government.

New York and other big cities have gone through these shocks and received civic benefits, but in Chicago no thief, however guilty, ever goes to prison for robbing the public, and all trials of this kind are regarded as mere political fun.

Gosh only knows what has held the town and the state together so long, but they will collapse into some horrible mess if the situation is not relieved

As an example of the quality of government in Illinois, consider this:—"the constitution forbids a state income tax, so, to support the incredible horde of parasites who live on the workers and producers the state is now collecting a 3 per cent tax on everything, including food."

Urges Extra Precautions During Double Holiday

Kimberly — A. D. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of the Kimberly Clark mill, urged employes to use extra safety precautions over the double holiday July 4 and 5. He spoke on safety at the clubhouse Friday noon. He said that the mill workers have not had a two day rest period in a long time, and felt sure that most of the workmen and their families would take a trip in their cars.

The speaker continued that usually in recent years there were many accidents during the holiday. Pointing to the tabulation of the traffic accidents in the county this year as against last year which are recorded in the Post-Crescent each evening, the speaker told the audience that the situation thus far is worse than in 1936. By driving carefully and always being alert for the other driver, many accidents can be avoided, Mr. Wilkinson said. He also urged parents to do a little missionary work among children so that they may not be injured with fireworks

John Van Halst of the Finishing room department won the safety prize which was awarded after the safety talk. He received a card table and four chairs.

The third open air concert which will be presented in the park by the Community band Thursday evening will be conducted by Prof. M. J. Heynen of Green Bay.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

By ESTHER TYLER

SYNOPSIS: The mysterious shooting to death of attractive Jude Blinshop makes us all jittery on this wild, stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. A series of strange attacks is apparently explained when we find below the bluff the body of Michael's insane father, supposedly long since dead. But our relief is brief: Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder by an unseen hand. Who held the gun? Mike: the Skipper, his tall, tweedy younger aunt: Gay Palmer, his red-headed sweetheart, Higgins, the old butler: William, the chauffeur: Cook: Annie, the maid?

Chapter 29

THE SLEEPING POWDERS

AND the murderer was a person of nerve. The murderer must have stood calmly in the hall, wiping off that gun, knowing that the report of it must have been heard all over the house There was my one stumbling block I could not conceive of Higgins as a person of that type Staid and pompous, yes But nerve? The man had been shaking practically continually since our arrival on Friday In the light of the Skipper's story, it seemed quite probable that he had been shaking for some time before that too

Gay ended my speculations momentarily by rising from the table

"I'm going to beg one of those powders from the Skipper and lie down," she said

Michael and I rose, too, I with sudden misgivings

"Don't do it!" I said sharply

Her eyebrows rose. "For Heaven's sake, why not?"

Feeling more foolish by the minute, I stuck to my guns

"It isn't safe in this house Take some more aspirin or something"

She stared at me blankly, and her voice took on an acid tinge. "Why, Jimmie, you haven't poisoned the sleeping powders, have you?"

Her words startled more than they annoyed me. My mind had been dwelling on the foolhardiness of heavy slumber in that devil-ridden house. hTe possibility of poison had not occurred to me Like the dull fool I was, I allowed my face to register my consternation.

"So you have?" said Michael softly. I whirled on him "Do you believe that?"

"My dear Jimmie," he was actually chuckling "I'm beginning to think I could believe anything"

It was really happening Mike was standing there, cold sober and without a trace of rage, calmly hinting that I was the murderer!

"I see" I said heavily. To save myself I couldn't think of a thing to say to either one of them I faced them for a brief second turned on my heel, and strode into the library If they already half believed the case against me, what would be the attitude of a disinterested jury?

I went through a pretty bad five minutes before Mike joined me He was loading a pipe and he strolled to the window without even glancing at me I was tempted to do two things I was tempted to knock his block off and I was tempted to stalk out of the room without speaking to him I did neither I stayed right there, waiting for him to speak

"We were only kidding, Jim"

I took plenty of time before I answered him "Sorry, I can't pretend to be amused"

Experiment In Laughter

He worked at the pipe a while Then "I'm on an impossible spot" Counting out the servants, I'm obliged to suspect my family, my girl or my best friend It's not so easy"

I could see that, but I still didn't care about being considered the worst bet in the crowd I was silent

Finally he turned around "A couple of hours ago I was suspecting myself"

I couldn't restrain a sulky grin Applying a match to his pipe, Mike grinned back at me

"No hard feelings?"

"No hard feelings"

That was too much for me We were suspecting each other of murder as we might have been suspecting each other of salting the rice pudding The sound of my own laughter fascinated me I experimented with it Michael didn't join in.

"Don't do that, for God's sake"

He was regarding me with a puzzled frown

"Sorry," I wheezed "It's so damn silly"

"Yes" His face was very grave "Jim—have you had anything to do with this?"

I would have laughed again, but I hadn't the energy

"No," I said "Word of honor, Mike Not a damned thing!"

He looked me straight in the eye "Neither have I—unless I'm out of my mind"

Until that weekend I would have accepted his word against a supreme court decision I half believed him even then But I had believed Gay and the Skipper and M Farrington also And they had all lied The thought was disconcerting Mike, reading it in my face, grinned

"You see?" he said I did see—all too clearly

"Mike," I said after a slight pause, "did Gay tell you what the Skipper asked her to?"

His eyes turned toward the fire "About my father?"

"Yes"

He nodded "I saw him last night, Jim When the Skipper fainted. He was standing in front of Jude's door There was so much fuss that no one noticed, and I didn't sing out because—because I knew him. Funny, isn't it? Twenty-odd years I've thought that he was dead, but I knew him on the spot—even knew what was wrong with him"

So that explained Michael's sudden notion that he was insane. It also explained how the maniac had gained admission to Jude's locked room He had been there, under the sheet, when I first locked the door. And Jude's body— It wasn't a pretty picture

Well, at least we had a fairly good idea of Norman Farrington's activities Escaping from Higgins' room he had somehow managed to get out of the house on Friday night The chances were that he had spent most of the night in the garage, except for the short time when the Skipper had scared him away It was even probable that he had tried to escape from the Bluff in a car, only to find that the bridge was down

He must have gained access to the house by the back door, mowing down Cook and Annie as he came. Then he had prowled the house, upsetting M. Farrington's room and killing the cat in just such a fit of insane frenzy as the Skipper had been fearing He had probably scuttled for the nearest door when he heard us on the stairs, and his manner of concealment within that room was gruesomely evident. During our excitement over the Skipper he had crept down the hall to William's room where—

Lured To His Death

My thoughts came to an abrupt halt I had locked the door of Jude's room before William and I met our accident It was still locked when we examined it later, and the lock had not been tampered with. Yet the madman must have entered that room at least once in the meantime.

When the Skipper and I had discovered Jude's body, we had also discovered a lock that had been tampered with. Why? If Norman Farrington could go through that door once without forcing its lock, why should he have forced it later? Had someone else lured the poor bedeviled old chap to his death? I glanced at Mike. He was staring into the fire, his eyes heavy and brooding his teeth clamped tightly on his pipe stem.

"Mike," I said "are you sure he was standing in front of Jude's door?"

He looked up in surprise "Positive Why?"

"Just wondering Did you see him go in there—Jude's room, I mean?"

"Why, no. He was still standing there when I helped you pick the Skipper up"

Well, it didn't matter. Whether Norman Farrington had been seen entering that room or not, there was nothing to indicate that he had stayed there—nothing but our inability to find him in the rest of the house to indicate that his hand had

Final Figures for Scout Movement in Menasha are Given

Reports Indicates Recent Drive Is a Success

Menasha—The final tabulation of results for the 1937 campaign for "One thousand friends of the Boy Scout movement in Menasha" shows definitely that the drive was a success.

Figures released by the committee in charge today show a total of 1,039 subscriptions, with a total of $1,030.25 contributed. The preliminary report sent out by J. H. Wilterding, chairman, to all of the members of the team organizations, indicated clearly that this result would be obtained when the final tabulation was made.

There was a close run for high team score between the Tigers, captained by Ralph Suess, and the Badgers, under the leadership of Russell F. Lyon. The Tigers raised a total of $171.70 and the Badgers, $170.35. Mr. Lyon was champion individual worker by a wide margin, having raised $130 by his own efforts. The Tigers were paced by Jesse Redmond, who received $44.50.

Results obtained by the other teams are as follows:

Mountain Lions, Ira Clough, captain, $141.50, 241 subscriptions; high man, Howard Aderhold, $27.50.

The advance committee, which consisted of a group of business men, reported a total of $170, in thirty subscriptions, and the high man on this committee was Rufus H. Clough with $56 reported.

As a result of the successful campaign, the workers who participated will be the guests of the Valley Council at the Gardner Dam camp on the weekend of Sept. 18-19. Invitations have already been sent out, but definite plans as to activities and program for the week-end are not completed.

Utility Case Comes Before Commission; Hearing Next Week

Menasha—The proposal to install a steam power plant in this city, augmenting the present Diesel generating equipment, was presented before the state public service commission in Madison Thursday afternoon.

The commission indicated that it would hold hearings in a week on the legal point raised by the counsel for the Wisconsin - Michigan Power company. The company's attorney objected to the utility's plan to serve the Marathon Paper Mills company, claiming that it would be illegal under an agreement made 25 years ago whereby the private utility would serve all clients in Neenah demanding more than 25 kilowatts.

It is proposed that either a $260,000 2,000-kilowatt or a $450,000 3,500-kilowatt steam generating plant be installed to take care of the increasing demand for power.

Stellar pitching by Buster Brown brought the Eagles through to a 3-2 victory over the Green Bay team in their first encounter this season.

Batteries for the visiting team will be Vanden Boom and Nockerts and for the Eagles, Brown and Smarzinski.

The two postponed games will be played Wednesday and on Thursday night the first-round schedule will be concluded, with Gilberts encountering Mill Supply at Seventh street and Marathons engaging Edgewater at Jefferson park.

Winnebago County Dairy Festival to be Big Event

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh—The Winnebago County Dairy festival slated for Sunday, June 27, will be one of the biggest events of the year to both farmers and city dwellers, T. G. Brown, secretary of the fair association, predicted today. He said the Sunday attendance will determine whether it will become an annual affair in the county.

The show is being sponsored by the Winnebago County Fair association, the breed associations in the county, the cow testing associations, the Granges, and the 4-H clubs of the county.

Two to Five Children are Rescued At Neenah Municipal Beach Daily

Neenah—Despite safety measures, warnings and precautions, from two to five children are rescued from drowning each day at the Neenah municipal bathing beach, Ole Jorgensen, superintendent, said today.

Most of the rescues occur when a swimmer goes beyond his depth or gets tired while swimming out to the raft. Strict rules governing swimmers are being enforced at the beach and every possible precaution is being taken to protect bathers, he said.

An additional guard, Dan Howman, was recently employed to watch youngsters in the shallow water. Jorgensen today warned parents to watch small children. Some of the youngsters get into a few feet of water and stumble or fall and are unable to regain their feet in the water.

During the present heat wave, attendance at the beach averages from 1,200 to 1,500 persons each day. Two guards are on duty at all times to protect bathers but with the large numbers, it is difficult work.

Dangerous Practice

Most dangerous, the life guard said, is the practice of swimming with an inflated innertube. Most bathers who use inner tubes are unable to swim without its help. When an off shore wind is blowing, it is possible that the bather may drift into deep water and get into trouble. Jorgensen suggested that parents warn children to use inner tubes only in shallow water.

Children should be kept at home a reasonable time after meals and should be warned not to go into the water when overheated. No diving is allowed off the end of the snort pier as the water is shallow at that point. Buoys have been anchored marking swimming limits.

Extend Pier

Workmen are now employed in building an extra section to the main pier to cover rocks embedded in the lake bed. The water at the end of the pier is six feet deep. Non-swimmers are warned not to enter the water from the end of the pier.

Rafts and piers at the beach are equipped with life preservers and a boat is anchored at the end of the pier to be available at all times. Only good swimmers are allowed to use the diving rafts in deep water.

The lake water is tested twice daily by the Neenah water department and is considered clean. The temperature of the water today was reported at from 74 to 76 degrees.

Something Wrong Here — Rose Bush Doesn't Bear Roses

Menasha — An 8-year-old rose bush that burst out a week ago in small, white blossoms resembling those on cherry trees or strawberry plants has Mrs. Tony Eskofski, 721 Third street, and her neighbors in a quandary.

The bush behaved in a perfectly normal manner the first seven years, Mrs. Eskofski says, bearing big American Beauty roses verging between a deep pink and red in color.

But evidently the bush got into different company lately and last Friday the white blossoms appeared. The blossoms grow in bunches, do not smell at all like roses, and are still coming.

The bush, which stands in the garden by Mrs. Eskofski's home, has attracted many people, but none of them has been able to explain just what it's all about.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York—(AP)—Steel and rail shares were at the fore of a slow downward movement in the stock market today, with leaders off fractions to more than a point

A more unfavorable outlook in the Mediterranean crisis, plus uncertainty over steel strike developments kept treaders out of the market.

While industrial news was not dismal, no positive factors were in evidence to bring out buying support.

All divisions shared in the downturn. Motors, oils, metals and specialties suffered from the general lack of interest. Some of the carriers were at new lows for the year.

Transfers approximated 250,000 shares.

Bottom marks for the year were hit by Northern Pacific, New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroad.

Other conspicuous losers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Chrysler, Allis Chalmbers, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda Copper, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Great Northern Preferred and Woolworth.

Most Shares Lower in Curb Transactions

New York —(AP)— Most shares pointed fractionally downward in a dragging curb market today.

Newmont Mining company slumped around 2 points. Oils and utilities were dispirited and edged lower. Niagara Hudson Power and United Gas were off minor fractions.

American Meter leaned backward a point and Pantepec Oil, St. Regis Paper, Wright Hargreaves and Chicago Flexible Shaft lost some ground.

Pan American Airways and Electric Bond and Share worked a trifle higher.

June Milk Price for Farmers Set at $1.22

Milwaukee—(AP)—Charles Dineen, secretary of the Milwaukee Cooperative Milk Producers' association, said today the June price to the farmer for manufactured milk in the Milwaukee area will be about $1.22 a hundredweight compared with the May price of $1.26. The lower price was estimated yesterday at a monthly conference of association directors and Milwaukee dealers.

Chicago —(AP)—All divisions of the livestock market were inactive today.

Cattle and sheep, both ruled nominally steady.

Downward Tendency In Bond Dealings

New York—(AP)—Prices sifted lower in the bond market today completing a week of gradual backtracking.

All sections joined in the downward movement with none showing pronounced heaviness late in the session. Rails, particularly low and medium priced issues, moved off small to major fractions.

Bethlehem Steel bonds also moved down as did Loews 3½s.

U. S. government liens were slow to open and virtually all lowered a little.

Brazilian issues provided the interest in the foreign quarter. These bonds, active on the up side of late, made further gains today.

Michigan Utilities Pay Dividends on Preferred

Profit - Selling Brings Declines In Wheat Prices

Quotations Down Over Cent After Earlier Steadiness

BY FRANKLIN MULLIN

Chicago—(AP)—Wheat prices fell today under the pressure of profit-taking and commercial selling, to prevent losses. The market declined more than a cent a bushel late in the session after showing steadiness earlier.

Offsetting the usual budget of drought complaints from western Canada and rust and grass hopper reports from crop experts inspecting domestic wheat fields, were advices from the northwest indicating grain trade sentiment holds to the belief the spring wheat belt as a whole is slowly but surely rounding out one of the best crops in several seasons.

Wheat closed ⅜-1 cent lower compared with yesterday's finish July 1.15⅜-½, September 1.16⅜-⅝, and corn was ⅛ off to 1 cent up, July new 1.23½-⅜, September 1.08⅞-09. Oats gained ⅛-1¼.

Milk Regulation Proposal Fails To Win Support

Administration Frowns on Plan for Bureau of Coordination

BY DOUGLAS MAC KENZIE

Washington—(AP)—The administration has frowned on a bill by Senator Royal S. Copeland, New York Democrat, to create a bureau of coordination of milk and milk products regulation in the agricultural department.

Adverse reports have been received by the senate agriculture committee from both the treasury and agriculture departments.

Opposition to the measure came from a Republican quarter this week before the committee prepared to consider the bill. Representative Charles Tobey, Temple, N. H., Republican, said he objected to it because it transferred from the public health service to the agriculture department the authority for sanitary control of milk distribution.

The bill is designed to encourage and promote adoption by the state of compacts for establishment of uniform policies for sale and distribution of milk and milk products. This work would be under control of a bureau of coordination to be set up in the agriculture department. The bill's foes say authority of the proposed bureau also would extend to price structures.

Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Wisconsin has closed his home here. His family has gone to Springfield, Ky., Mrs. Duffy's former home, for a visit before returning to Fond du Lac, Wis., about July 4.

Expect Federal Aid

Approval by the senate of earmarking $327,000,000 for the public works administration out of the $1,500,000,000 voted for relief next year, increased the probability that Wisconsin projects for which bonds have been voted or bond issues approved, will receive federal aid.

Such federal contributions will be on the basis of 45 per cent of the total project cost in contrast to the recent regulation providing for only relief costs plus 15 per cent. Senator Duffy says it is the intention to have the government carry out its "moral obligation" to governmental sub-divisions where the latter acted with the understanding a 45 per cent grant would be received.

Representative Gardner Withrow of La Crosse, Wis., will go on the air July 8 to discuss his house resolution calling for a federal trade commission investigation of the relationship between automobile manufacturers and retail dealers. Final arrangements for the speech have not been worked out, Withrow said.

Herbert Schmidt of Milwaukee, secretary to Senator Duffy, dotes on puzzles. Ever since he won a pound of bacon in a national contest, he has been trying for everything that comes along.

Right now he is in some seven or eight contests, in one of which he is one of several thousand finalists for a big cash prize.

Schmidt ponders crosswords, limericks, sentences with missing words, and assembles bottle caps, package covers, stickers and coupons during his spare time to qualify as a contestant in one or all current contests.

Witness Not Present So Charge Is Dropped

Chicago—(AP)—Domestic Relations Judge Gibson E. Gorman discharged Rudolph J. Ritz, 52, Racine, Wis., Y. M. C. A. secretary, yesterday when no witnesses appeared to prosecute a charge of making improper remarks over the telephone.

The charge was made May 4 by Miss Mary Ekstam, night superintendent of nurses at a hospital. Miss Ekstam later told police the remarks were not improper, but she had believed the call to be from a man who called the hospital about a month previously.

Apartment Workers on Strike After Confab

Milwaukee—(AP)—Thirty employes of the Cudahy Tower apartments went on strike at noon today and immediately began picketing. They had prepared to strike at 9 a. m. but delayed while William Cooper, business agent for the Building Service Employes' union an A. F. of L. affiliate, conferred with John Banner, building manager.

Plans Deep Sea Dive To Test Breathing Mixture Under Water

Chicago—(AP)—Captain John H. Craig of Long Beach, Calif., said he planned within a month to make a 400-foot deep sea dive off the New Jersey coast with equipment utilizing a helium breathing mixture recently tested in Milwaukee.

Craig, a salvage engineer, denied a published report that plans to salvage valuables from the sunken liner Lusitania had been abandoned. He said an attempt to reach the hull, lying on the ocean floor near the coast of Ireland, would be made in August by Trotonia, Ltd., a Glasgow salvaging company with which he is associated.

The liner's treasure was estimated worth between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Craig recently conducted experiments with a breathing mixture of helium and oxygen, instead of the customary nitrogen, at Milwaukee with his associate Max E. Nohl of Milwaukee and Dr. Edgar End of the Marquette university medical school.

He said the tests had shown helium greatly reduces the time needed to adjust the human body to rapidly changing air and water pressures.

Milk Pool Officials Injured in Auto Crash

Harry Jack, Hortonville, state president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, and Paul Weiss, Barnum, vice president, were released today from Ripon hospital where they were treated for minor cuts and bruises. They were injured when their car left a slippery highway pavement last night and hit a tree.

Gene Wright and Walter Hewitt, Stevens Point, both former residents of Appleton, brought their 24-foot sailboat to Appleton today and started on a two weeks' cruise of the Fox river, Green bay and Lake Michigan. The boat was launched at the Appleton Boat club.

placed Jude Blinshop where we found her. The wading was getting deeper and deeper. I had a growing conviction that the death of Michael's father had been no accident. Unpleasant as it would be for all of us, I began to wish that the police would arrive.

My mind reverted suddenly to M. Farrington's assertion that she had seen a man's sleeve reflected in her mirror. It was possible that the old lady had been mistaken. It was also possible that she had been attempting either to shield or to incriminate someone. The last idea wasn't exactly cheering. The only person who had been in any way incriminated was myself. And the idea of M. Farrington's intending such a state of affairs was preposterous.

I began to consider M. Farrington carefully. It occurred to me that I should like to examine her room again. I should like to know a thing or two about the angle of her mirror and the distance from the hall door to her dressing table. The would-be murderer had stood in that doorway, of that much I was sure. It would be the only logical place to stand in order to allow for a quick disposal of the weapon. And there were powder burns on the back of M. Farrington's robe. Yes, I very much wanted to see that room.

There were only two people in the house that M. Farrington would attempt to shield in such an instance—Mike and the Skipper. Gay, I felt sure, she would have betrayed without a second's hesitation. Since I knew that I had not been in that doorway, there was little point in trying to decide whether or not she would have shielded me. Would she protect Higgins? The question seemed very important.

The clerks held a 3-day session in which they heard discussions of new legislation affecting the counties, bond issues, and fish and game licenses. Only one change was made in the slate of officers. Joseph Cook, Oconto was elected vice president; Hantschel was renamed secretary and Edward Kuhlman, Oshkosh, was reelected treasurer. Oshkosh was awarded the 1938 convention.

Driving Costs in Summer Cut Down By Jahnke Concern

Company Salvages Good. Useful Parts From Wrecked Automobiles

Motoring is one of the favorite and most enjoyable pastimes of the American public and during the warm summer months the car is given more use than any other time of year. There are so many places to go. The roads tempt the vacationist to take a "trip." Short evening drives after the day's work and, of course, Sundays are looked-forward-to for extended journeys. Car owners with limited budgets for summer pleasure drives will be wise to take advantage of the variety of services offered by the Jahnke Wrecking Company, designed to lower upkeep and reconditioning costs made necessary by this increased mileage.

Many automobile repair bills, for example, may be considerably low, this firm points out, by taking advantage of its used parts service. Oftentimes new parts, used in place of old and broken parts, are unnecessary purchases because Jahnke's large stock of quality, low cost used parts may easily be substituted without sacrificing the quality of the repair job. The parts which Jahnke's salvage generally are exceptionally serviceable and often have undergone little wear for many of them are removed from practically new cars which are made useless because of an accident.

Jahnke's feature many services which hundreds of motorists for years have found to their advantage. The long list of services include dealing in used and new parts, accessories of every description, the selling of good used tires at a substantial saving, the repairing of damaged cars by expert repairmen, the selling of used cars, modern towing services, and daily employee service until 10 p. m. including Sundays.

Now's Best Time To Plan Painting By Nehls' Experts

Summer Most Convenient Season for Painting, Wallpapering

Summer, despite the inconvenience and discomforts of warm weather, still represents a most ideal and convenient season for painting and wallpapering, points out the William Nehls Wallpaper and Paint firm, located at 224 W. Washington street. Weather conditions are by far the most consistent at this time of year, thus the job can be done with fewer interruptions.

Give yourself a vacation at home this summer by changing the color scheme of your home surroundings, is a worthwhile suggestion offered by this firm. This can be done easily by brightening up your house with tastefully tinted walls or the application of beautiful new wallpaper, selected from Nehls' unusually large stock of excellent patterns. The exterior of the house may also be cheerfully improved through application of a coat or two of Nehls' quality line or Moore paints. The cost is surprisingly low. The average six room house will take only six gallons of exterior paint for two coats, this firm explains.

The use of cool colors for present warm room, the use of warm colors for present seemingly cold rooms, cheerful colors for dull rooms, glad colors for play rooms, light colors for small or dark rooms stimulating colors, restful colors, to be found in the wallpaper patterns stocked by this firm or created from the wide selection of colors made possible from the large stock of high quality paints, will make possible a new beauty and cheerfulness in your home.

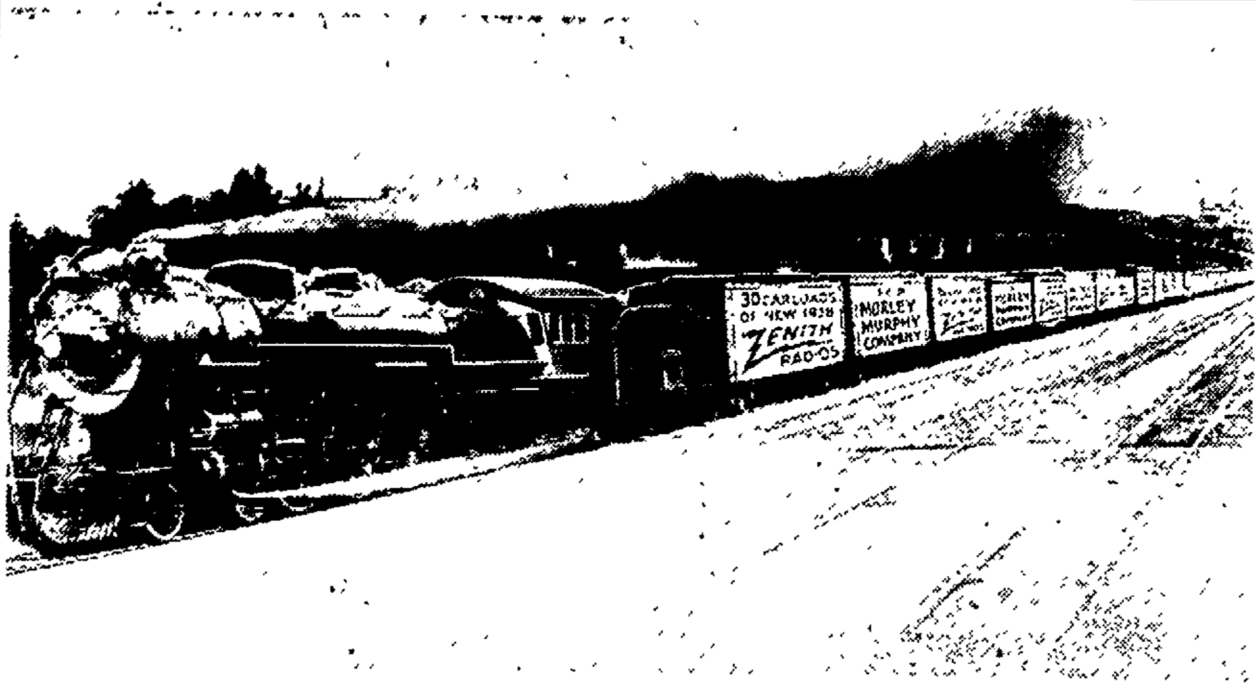
Whether you plan to do one or any of these suggestions or would just like to know how much it would cost, you will be wise to contact the William Nehls Wallpaper and Paint headquarters. The telephone number is 452 if you prefer to call. This firm, one of the oldest and most reliable in this vicinity, is splendidly equipped to serve you.

BLIGHT ENDANGERS TREES

Washington—(AP)—The Dutch elm disease is threatening elm shade trees valued in the millions of dollars.

American Forestry association officials say that destruction of a billion trees is imminent unless prompt steps are taken to eradicate the disease. The blight already has made much progress in the east.

Thunder, the loudest common noise, has never been heard unmistakably more than about 20 miles from the flash.



TRAINLOAD OF ZENITHS ARRIVES FOR THIS TERRITORY

The picture above gives an idea of the number of Zenith radios ordered by Green Bay distributors for this territory—30 carloads of them, ranging in price from $19.95 to $750. The line includes city, farm, automobile, boat, trailer and camp models, four combination phonographs and radio receivers, and two radio bars.

Zenith introduced one arm-chair model last year, which was over-sold all during the radio year. This year there are 16 different types of arm-chair models, selling at from $29.95 up. It is believed that the arm-chair type may largely replace the console type.

Another new development announced at the convention, and prompted by the government's extensive rural electrification program, is a farm set which instantly can be changed from 6-volt to 110-volt, or vice versa, at the throw of a switch.

The Zenith line is sold in the Appleton area by Geenen's and the Finkle Electric Shop.

Lumber Exports Show Decrease Of 18 Per Cent

Hemlock Among Softwoods in Sharpest Declines

Post-Crescent Washintong Bureau

Washington—Exports of lumber from the United States during the first third of the year decreased 18.8 per cent compared with the corresponding time of 1936, according to the Department of Commerce.

Of the total 460,080 M board feet exported during the first four months of the year, 424,981 M feet was sawed lumber—5 per cent less than in 1936. The greatest decline was in logs and hewn timber which amounted to only 35,099 M feet—70.7 per cent less than the year before.

Hemlock was among the group of softwoods showing the sharpest declines. Shipments of this timber fell to 2,705 M feet for the first four months of 1937, a loss of 37.7 per cen. Douglas fir declined 37.7 per cent and redwood fell 19.9 per cent lower than it was for the same period of last year.

Gains were reported for the following softwood species: southern pine, 9 6 per cent; cedar, 5.1 per cent; spruce, 19.4 per cent and white pine, 34 6 per cent.

Sawn hardwoods totalled 137,403 M feet for the first four months of 1937—representing a gain of 34 9 per cent over last year. All species in the group made gains—the largest recorded for oak, poplar and red and sap gum.

Total imports of hardwood and softwood logs and lumber for the first third of the year increased from 200,696 M feet in 1936 to 226,253 M feet. Of this amount, 167,334 M feet were softwood lumber and, 34,506 M feet were hardwood lumber and sawed cabinet woods and 24,413 M feet were logs.

Call Public Hearing to Discuss Fish, Game Laws

Notice of a public hearing for the purpose of securing recommendations on fish and game laws has been given to sportsmen by Conservation Warden George Whalen. The hearing will be held at 7:30 Wednesday evening, July 7 at the courthouse. Sportsmen have been asked to give recommendations relative to the establishment of open and closed seasons for the several species of game and fish and such bag limits, size limits, rest days and other conditions governing the taking of game fish. The recommendations will be considered in providing laws to conserve the game and fish supply, Whalen said.
